Dear members of the Class of 2023,

Welcome to our great J-School community.

We are incredibly excited to get to work with you for the duration of your program (and beyond), and to learn from you as much as you will learn from us.

This is a tremendous time to be a journalist, to remind ourselves of the privilege and responsibility bestowed upon those who make a living by serving the public.

You are joining us at a critical moment. Our profession faces not just one, but a convergence of crises: the inadequacy of its business models, the acute dearth of diversity in personnel and leadership, the growing generational questioning of old journalistic paradigms, political polarization and the rise of authoritarianism, record levels of public mistrust, and the disinformation epidemic.

While the converging crises are threatening, they present us with an extraordinary opportunity to create a journalism that could be better than anything we’ve had before. This is also a moment of enormous transformation and experimentation, of self-reflection and correction. Journalists are finding new ways to reach people and earn their trust, entrepreneurs are creating original models to serve communities, new sources of revenue are being explored, and the public mission of journalism is back at the center of the conversation around news — just where it belongs.

We will give you the skills, the tools, the support, and the guidance to make that happen. We aim to help you succeed in the industry as is, but also to give you the elements you’ll need to become agents of change.

You have chosen a J-School that is uniquely positioned to lead the conversation about these crises and the ways forward. We are well-adapted to the dire financial straits of the industry. Our graduates carry lower debt and earn higher wages than their peers from most J-Schools in America. We train more journalists of color and from marginalized backgrounds than probably any other competitive J-School. And we have an excellent rate of alumni employment. We offer an innovative, forward-looking, and nimble curriculum as well as unique, cutting-edge programs, including the bilingual concentration, the Engagement Journalism M.A., and the executive leadership and management initiatives. We have solid relationships with the news media industry and a strong reputation as a leader in journalism education.

Now, let me tell you a little about you.

You are our 16th cohort. You come from many different backgrounds and lived experiences, speak more than a dozen languages, and have widely varied journalistic experiences—or none. You come from New York, New Jersey, Mississippi, Puerto Rico, Florida, California, Colorado, North Carolina, Michigan, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Washington, Texas, Georgia, and South Dakota. You also comprise the largest international cohort the school has ever had: 21% of the total class, with 11 countries represented: Israel, China, Cuba, India, Argentina, Mexico, Nepal, Morocco, France, Ukraine, Afghanistan. Some of you come from countries in which the free practice of journalism, or the mere existence of an independent news media, have long been under threat. We are eager to exchange lessons with you to strengthen rigorous, meaningful journalism in the service of the public.

I know you will learn from each other and find inspiration and camaraderie in your fellow class members.

You will leave us carrying the knowledge, the tools, the skills, the experience, and the confidence you need to thrive in journalism—and in possession of a strong network of support and friendship that will be yours for the rest of your lives.

Welcome home.

THE CITY UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

The City University of New York (www.cuny.edu) provides high-quality, accessible education for more than 275,000 degree-seeking students of all ages and awards 55,000 degrees each year.

CUNY has a legislatively mandated mission to be “of vital importance as a vehicle for the upward mobility of the disadvantaged in the City of New York ... ensuring equal access and opportunity” to students, faculty and staff “from all ethnic and racial groups.”

The University is an integrated system of senior and community colleges, graduate and professional schools, research centers, institutes and consortia. From certificate courses to Ph.D. programs, CUNY offers postsecondary learning to students of all backgrounds. It provides the city with graduates trained for high-demand positions in the sciences, technology, mathematics, teaching, nursing and other fields. As CUNY has grown, the University also has strengthened its mission as a premier research institution, building an array of modern facilities and expanding the ranks of its world-class faculty.

Throughout its history, the University has been an integral part of the city and state through partnerships with public schools, economic development initiatives, immigration aid and financial advice services and other community outreach programs. Today, CUNY faculty and staff members continue to benefit New York City - as well as the entire nation - by serving as policy experts to business and government and advisers to nonprofit institutions, civic organizations and community groups. Students, too, are strongly encouraged to experience the cultural, educational and community-based opportunities of the five boroughs, through a network of internships and fellowships, to embrace the city as their campus.
The Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism operates under the umbrella of The Graduate School and University Center (also known as The Graduate Center) and its degrees are granted through The Graduate Center (www.gc.cuny.edu). Founded in 1961, The Graduate Center is the principal doctorate-granting institution of CUNY, with more than 4,200 students. Its professors pursue a shared enterprise of expanding the boundaries of knowledge in more than 30 doctoral programs and six master’s programs in the humanities, social sciences and sciences. Augmenting this enterprise are 28 research centers and institutes focused on areas of compelling social, civic, cultural, and scientific concerns.

Also affiliated with The Graduate Center is the CUNY Baccalaureate Program, through which undergraduates can earn bachelor’s degrees by taking courses at any of the CUNY colleges, the Macaulay Honors College, the School of Professional Studies, and the associated Joseph S. Murphy Institute for Worker Education and Labor Studies.

Since 1999, The Graduate Center’s campus has been housed in a nine-story landmark building at 365 Fifth Avenue in midtown Manhattan. Formerly home to the B. Altman Department Store, the building has been redesigned as a new, state-of-the-art facility to meet the specific needs of a 21st-century institution of advanced learning. School of Journalism students have access to many of the services at The Graduate Center, including the Mina Rees Library, the Wellness Center, the Financial Aid office, and the Office of International Students.
IMPORTANT NOTICE
Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism reserves the right, because of changing conditions, to make modifications of any nature to the academic programs and requirements of the program without advance notice. Tuition and fees set forth in this publication are similarly subject to change by the Board of Trustees of the City University of New York.
The Master of Arts in Journalism

DEGREE REQUIREMENTS AND REQUIRED COURSES

The course of study for the M.A. degree in journalism at CUNY is challenging. Students will participate in a comprehensive summer internship and produce a substantial capstone project, in addition to completing 40 units of course work, for a total of 43 credits. The curriculum offers students the opportunity to construct a program in three or four semesters that best reflects their interest in writing, audio, video, photo or interactive media, and their interest in a subject concentration: Arts & Culture, Bilingual Journalism, Business & Economic, Health & Science, International or Urban Reporting. Students are required to take a set of courses designed to provide the solid foundation that all journalists should have, regardless of the media and subject choices they make.

Those courses, offered in the first and second semesters of the program, are:

- Craft of Journalism I (must be taken in first semester and all work for the course must completed before the start of the second semester)
- Legal and Ethical Issues
- Fundamentals of Audio Reporting
- Fundamentals of Video Reporting
- Introduction to Data Journalism
- Advanced Reporting (prerequisite for Summer Internship; must be taken in the student’s second semester)
- Advanced Research Techniques

SUBJECT CONCENTRATIONS

Towards the middle of their first semester, students will choose a subject concentration, selecting from Arts & Culture, Business & Economics, Health & Science, International, Bilingual, and Urban Reporting. By focusing on a specific subject, students will be prepared for either general assignment, specialized or beat reporting—all assignments they are likely to have in the course of their careers.

Students are required to take a minimum of nine credits of classes within their subject concentration over the course of their study. Courses within each program are listed below. All courses are three credits, unless noted otherwise. Special topics courses are sometimes offered in the specialization. The subject matter will vary depending on the instructor’s expertise.

Arts & Culture
- Arts Criticism
- Cultural Issues
- Arts & Entertainment Reporting
- Sports Reporting

Bilingual
- Program information on page 15

Business & Economics
- Covering the Economy
- Covering Markets and Companies (6 credits)

Health & Science
- Introduction to Health Journalism
- Science Journalism
- Investigative Health Reporting
- Urban Environmental Reporting

International
- Intro to International Reporting
- Cross-Cultural Reporting
- Issues in International Reporting

Urban
- Covering City Government & Politics
- Covering New York’s Social Issues
- Urban Environmental Reporting
- Urban Investigative Reporting
  (not to be confused with Investigative Reporting, which is an elective and does not focus on any one specialization)

PUBLICATION REQUIREMENTS

Craft 1, Advanced Reporting, Reporting for Engagement Journalism and Advanced Reporting for Engagement Journalism courses all include a requirement that all students publish at least one piece of work each semester. Students can fulfill this requirement with work from any first or second-semester class.

Please note: F-1 international students must obtain Curricular Practical Training (CPT) Authorization on their I-20 forms before they engage in any paid or unpaid off-campus (non-CUNY) employment. This includes being published by a non-CUNY publication in relation to your academic studies.
ELECTIVES

Students are free to choose courses across media formats, depending on their interests and career goals. In general, all students follow the same curriculum in the first semester. In the second and third semesters, schedules will vary depending on subject concentration, media interests, and electives. Students should consult with their academic advisor to determine the best mix of media courses to help them meet their goals.

Some third-semester courses have second-semester prerequisites, but students who have not taken these prerequisites may petition the faculty member for entry by submitting work that shows they have the necessary skills to succeed in that course.

THREE SEMESTER TIMELINE

A student’s course of study will be determined in large measure by the choice of electives and subject concentration. However, here is a generic course of study that will allow students to figure out what they are likely to take over the three semesters, once they’ve decided which media courses and subject specialization will help meet their goals.

FOURTH SEMESTER OPTION

Students have the option of declaring a fourth semester.

- To take additional media courses or electives that do not fit into a three-semester program.
- To take related courses at other CUNY colleges. For instance, a student in the international concentration may want to study Arabic or Chinese at City College; someone in the J-School’s Business & Economics program may want to take MBA-level classes in the Zicklin School of Business at Baruch College.
- To allow more time to complete their M.A. in Journalism degree requirements.
- To participate in an exchange program at a journalism school abroad. More details about the Sorbonne Exchange program below.
- To more easily accommodate a professional internship during the school year.

Students who have chosen to stay beyond a third semester in order to take additional courses at the school or at another CUNY college should discuss appropriate sequencing of their courses over a four-semester time frame with their student affairs advisor. Please note that students who pursue this option must pay tuition for the extra semester. Also, courses taken outside of the Newmark J-School may not count towards the journalism degree. For example, credits taken in undergraduate language courses outside the Newmark J-School will not be counted. Any student in good academic standing may apply. For maximum flexibility, those who are interested in a fourth semester should consult the Office of Student Affairs as early as possible.
BILINGUAL PROGRAM SUBJECT CONCENTRATION

Degree Requirements and Required Courses

Students are required to complete a total of 43 credits with the Bilingual subject concentration. The Bilingual Program has a separate admission process but its students are fully integrated into the traditional M.A. in Journalism degree program and complete the same credit load (43-credit hours). Bilingual students take required first- and second-semester journalism fundamentals classes and three new subject courses in Spanish. All assignments for these classes are produced in Spanish. They also take English-language courses with the rest of the M.A. in Journalism cohort. Students in the concentration complete a required summer internship in the U.S. or abroad. This can be at a Spanish-language news outlet or bilingual/English-language outlet whose focus is on Latino audiences. They participate in seminars with U.S. Latinx media leaders and make in-person visits to leading newsrooms in New York City.

If you have any questions regarding the number of credits or if you are in the flexible

CAPSTONE PROJECT

The capstone project shows off the best of what you have learned. To qualify for graduation, each student must successfully complete a capstone project — professional-quality journalism suitable for today’s multimedia, interactive market that demonstrates mastery of reporting skills, media tools and subject knowledge. Capstones are the culminating project of your time at the Newmark J-School.

To check out past capstone projects, visit the Research Center’s archive. (This space will be updated with links to projects so that you can see them on their hosted sites. 2019 capstones are embargoed and will be viewable in July 2020.

What constitutes a capstone? A capstone is generally one of the following:
1. A capstone can be an in-depth reported story on a single topic, made up of at least three of the following elements: writing, interactive elements, data, photographs, video, audio, all neatly packaged on a webpage.
2. A series of related reported pieces on a single topic, that includes at least three of following elements: writing, interactive elements, data, photographs, video, audio, all neatly packaged on a webpage.
3. A subject beat portfolio that demonstrates expertise on a specific subject made up of at least four stories (from at least two different classes) all neatly packaged on a webpage. The portfolio must include at least three of the following elements: writing, interactive elements, data, photographs, video, audio.

Keep the following aspects in mind for all capstones:
1. Timeliness: It’s not easy to do, especially when you’re planning and working for months before you file, but always be on the lookout for a peg(s). In any case, timeliness and a sense of urgency will help you sell your story(ies).
2. Relevance: The best capstones give fresh insight into a subject that’s well worn – or, better yet, under-covered.
3. Don’t Confuse Length for Quality: There is no set length for capstones. That is determined by your capstone supervisor based on the nature of the topic. That said, capstones are a culminating project that should reflect extensive research and reporting on the subject(s). Beware of “notebook dumps” — throwing in everything you have to reach a length benchmark. There’s a difference between a story and a report. Remember: You’re a storyteller.
4. Packaging is Key: All elements of the capstone should not be last-minute considerations. All pieces of the project should be planned early on in the process. Your goal: to weave them in seamlessly, in the best spot/s, to create a cohesive package. Strong headlines and blurbs will help you get an audience.
5. Take Chances: Be adventurous and creative in your use of storytelling tools, while keeping to standards of fairness and accuracy.
6. Seek Engagement: Use social media not only to promote your work, but to engage an audience.
7. Be Passionate: You’re going to live with this project for a long time. Choose topics that excite you. Your passion will come through in the final product.
8. Create Your Calling Card: The capstone is a prime platform to showcase the many skills (your journalism super power(s)) you’ve honed at the J-School.
It hopefully will help you land that first post-graduation gig.

What are the components of capstones:
- All capstones must be presented on a webpage.
- All capstones will be made of at least three different storytelling elements, most likely with one element being dominant, such as text, photography, audio, video, charts, timelines, data visualizations and/or HTML, CSS and JS files if the webpage is created from scratch. What counts as an element is determined by your capstone supervisor.
- A compelling headline(s) that easily captures people’s attention and can be shared via social media.
- A blurb for mobile consumption and/or to provide a quick synopsis.
- If the capstone is text-based, a photo or illustration toward the top of the piece, with other photos or multimedia/interactive elements integrated in logical spots throughout the piece. Pull quotes and other visual elements are encouraged as well.
- If it is multimedia-based or long-form video-driven, the capstone should include a text introduction and be supplemented by at least one different multimedia/interactive element.
- Integration of social media elements as appropriate.

Where do I produce the capstone?
- A capstone can be done in a third-semester class or as part of a three-credit independent study. If it is done as an independent study, expectations for the scope and ambition of the capstone will be higher. A proposed independent study must be approved by the supervising professor and the Associate Dean.
- Some classes lend themselves better to one form of a capstone. For example, many subject courses require students to report several pieces on a beat. Other skills courses, like narrative writing or investigative reporting lead to a single piece with supporting elements.
- A student must fill out a capstone archiving form with the Research Center, so that their capstone can be archived by the Newmark J-School. If a student has not completed the necessary capstone archiving form, their capstone will not be accepted or graded. Students attempting to sell their work will have the option to keep their work private for up to six months. After that, the work will become publicly viewable on the Newmark J-School repository.

Who is my capstone supervisor?
The capstone supervisor will either be the instructor of the course in which they report the main component of their capstone or the person who will oversee their independent study. This is not necessarily your faculty advisor. You might involve another faculty member or coach at various stages of the capstone process, to augment the supervisor’s area of expertise. The supervisor will assign the capstone grade.

What does my capstone supervisor do?
1. Approve the topic and the direction of the project
2. Provide guidance on structure and organization for project
3. Determine length of elements and nature of all elements
4. Establish deadlines
5. Approve final version submitted to the Research Center
6. Grade the project

Can I work with others on my capstone?
Students can work together on a joint large capstone, with approval of a supervisor, but each member of the team must individually and separately do work that satisfies the requirements of a capstone. Each team member must contribute a major story to the capstone package, whether in text or multimedia, plus at least two complementary multimedia, text or interactive elements. Each member of the team must submit a memo to the capstone supervisor about his/her contributions to the final package.

Capstone timeline

Second semester
- Begin thinking about capstone possibilities.
- Attend the required capstone information sessions. This will help you better understand how to choose a capstone supervisor, the capstone reporting process, deadlines, etc. You cannot register for the fall if you don’t attend a capstone information session.
- Consult with your capstone supervisor.
- File an electronic capstone declaration form in May before you leave for the summer on which you declare your capstone topic and your supervisor.

Summer
- Check in twice with your supervisor with project updates

Fall semester
- File an electronic capstone approval form no later than the third week of September, which must be approved by your capstone supervisor. If you do not submit the form by the required date, you will not be permitted to check out school equipment.
- Capstone supervisors will issue mid-semester written warnings to any students who fall seriously behind on their capstone projects. Each warning will include steps a student must take to complete the project successfully.
- Capstones will be produced in drafts and given final grades according to a schedule set by the supervisor. The final deadline for edited and revised capstones is the day grades are due.
- Archive your capstone with the Research Center. Follow the process outlined here. Faculty cannot file a final grade for you until you have completed the capstone archiving form and archive your project. If you are trying to sell your work, you will have the option to keep it private for up to six months. After that, the work will become publicly viewable on the J-School repository.
- If you are completing the capstone as part of a class, professors will factor the capstone grade into the student’s overall class grade. For capstones completed as an independent study, it will constitute the entire grade. Your supervisor may ask for another faculty member or coach to assist with assessing multimedia components as appropriate.

A note for Bilingual Journalism Program capstones
The capstone projects developed in the Bilingual Journalism Program’s classes are in Spanish. However, if a Bilingual Journalism student does her/his/their capstone in a class in English, outside the program’s classes, the project must include a bilingual component, including but not limited to subtitles in Spanish, original material in Spanish such as audio from an interview, or texts in English and Spanish. The proposed bilingual component must be approved by the head of the Bilingual Journalism Program.

FIVE PILLARS OF ENGAGEMENT JOURNALISM

The Engagement Journalism program is based around five key skill areas:

1. Listening: Starting with the public to discern goals and needs
2. Journalism: Gathering and presenting the information communities need
3. Data: Measuring impact reporting, and developing a better understanding of a community
4. Technology: Working with social media and other tools the public uses to interact, curate, crowdsource, and inform
5. Business & Entrepreneurship: Building a sustainable news organization and developing new products and services

COMMUNITY PRACTICUM

Every student will select an existing community—whether defined by geography, demography, interest, or business—to serve, beginning in the first semester of the program. Using the skills and tools the student has learned in the prior semesters, students will design and implement a significant project to engage and report on this community in their final semester, as a capstone experience. Exactly what this project looks like will depend on what the community needs, as well as the student’s interests and goals, and will be subject to approval by their professors/director.
EQUIPMENT, FACILITIES & TECHNOLOGY
Students in the Class of 2022 will receive equipment that will allow them to use their smartphone as the primary device for audio and video reporting.

Students are responsible for making an appointment with the Equipment Room to pick up their smartphone audio/video accessories. Should a student decide to postpone their attendance or withdraw from the school, that student is responsible for immediately returning the equipment to the Newmark Graduate School of Journalism. Students are expected to return these items to the Equipment Room when classes resume on campus, or by other arrangement.

Students in the Class of 2021 are able to make reservations for checkouts with the equipment room staff by appointment only. Student reporting must be in line with school policies regarding safe reporting and they have received authorization. Staff are available Monday thru Friday, 9am-6pm. Please contact equipment@journalism.cuny.edu to arrange an appointment.

Students are responsible for the return of all equipment currently in their possession to the Equipment Room when they have completed their coursework and no longer have need of it, or by other arrangement.

All other policies stated in this document remain in effect. Please be aware that we are in a rapidly evolving situation regarding the pandemic, and circumstances may require us to amend our policies.

STUDENT POLICIES

The Equipment Room at the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism at the City University of New York loans a variety of video, photo and audio equipment to help students complete their academic studies.

Eligibility for equipment use is restricted to currently registered students in good standing. The equipment may only be used in support of coursework.

EQUIPMENT SERVICES ONBOARDING

Before equipment is issued, students must complete an onboarding process with the equipment staff. This process includes:

- providing proof of property insurance that meets or exceeds the rental gear value
- reading, understanding, and signing the Equipment Checkout Policies form
- activating an Equipment Portal account and receiving training on use of the site

An insurance plan specifically tailored to the program has been arranged with Haylor Freyer & Coon Inc. The enrollment, coverage, and claim information can be found at: http://www.haylor.com/college/cuny-graduate-school-of-journalism/

Should you require additional insurance based on your course load, please contact HFC during your enrollment advisement period.

EQUIPMENT USAGE GUIDELINES

Equipment kits that support students’ coursework will be determined by faculty. The type of equipment kits issued to a student is dependent on the student’s course schedule, the student’s good standing, and equipment availability.

At the beginning of each semester, the equipment staff will prepare a long-term checkout based on the equipment needs of each student’s course enrollment. The student will be contacted to schedule pickup and return times for this semester-long kit.

For 2nd and 3rd Semester students in good standing, supplemental a la carte equipment may be accessed at https://webcheckout.journalism.cuny.edu/patron#1/

Reservations must be made and modified via the Equipment Portal at least 24 hours prior to the desired pickup time.

Reserved equipment for an upcoming checkout will be held until the end of the pickup day. Equipment not picked up by the end of that business day will be released for other students’ use.
Any overdue equipment must be returned before additional equipment reservations can be made.

Students may not have more than three active checkouts and the total value of checked out equipment can not exceed their insurance limit.

Equipment returns will be made by appointment. Please allow at least 10 to 15 minutes for processing returns.

AVAILABLE EQUIPMENT

- Equipment kits that support students’ coursework will be determined by faculty. The type of equipment kit available to a student depends on the class, equipment availability, and good standing.
- Reservations must be made or modified online at least 24 hours prior to the desired pickup time; reservations requested by phone or email will not be honored. Should extenuating circumstances require same-day preparation of a reservation, please contact your professor and the Equipment Room to submit a same-day equipment petition.
- Students may not have more than two active checkouts signed out at any given time.
- Equipment must be returned before 1:30 p.m. on the due date or a late fine of $25 will be assessed.
- Please arrive at least 10 to 15 minutes in advance to allow for processing the return. The Equipment Room closes every day from 1:30 – 1:45 p.m.
- All overdue equipment must be returned before additional equipment reservations can be made online.

Reserved and packed equipment for an upcoming checkout will be held until the end of the pickup day. Equipment not picked up by the end of that business day (6:00 p.m. during standard hours; 5:30 p.m. during summer and extended break hours) will cancel the reservation and incur a $10 “no-show” fine. Any equipment that is part of a canceled reservation will be unpacked and released for other students’ use.

Limited-time extensions and Same-day Equipment Petitions are subject to class year, equipment availability, and the approval of faculty and the Director of Campus Services based on need.

For limited-time extensions, students should email requests for approval to their professor with their graduation year, contract number for equipment needing extension, amount of extension time needed, and an explanation as to why an extension is necessary. Faculty will then contact the equipment room with approval. Extensions must be submitted at least two hours before equipment is due, or a standard late fee will apply.

For same-day equipment petitions, students should email requests for approval to their professor with their graduation year, an explanation as to why same-day equipment is necessary, and what type of equipment they need. Faculty will then contact the equipment room with approval. The Equipment Room will then determine if and when the request can be fulfilled based on equipment availability and schedule.

HOLD & INVOICES

Students are responsible for the good care and intact return of all equipment borrowed, and are responsible for the cost of the repair and/or replacement of any missing or damaged equipment, in line with University policy.*

In cases of broken or lost items whose replacement value does not exceed the deductible of their personal property insurance policy, students must purchase a replacement item immediately.

In cases of broken or lost items whose replacement value exceeds the student’s insurance deductible, the item will be sent for a repair estimate from the appropriate repair facility. Upon receiving the estimate, the student is required to immediately submit a claim for the cost of repair or replacement. Upon receipt of the payment, students must submit the payment to the school. Student checkout privileges will be placed on hold until receipt of payment for the cost of repair or replacement is received by the school, or the school receives the replacement item.* Students are required to resolve all outstanding holds and/or equipment repairs by the end of each semester if they wish to begin the following semester in good standing. Unresolved holds and repair costs will be forwarded to the bursar’s office, and will affect a student’s ability to register for classes the following semester.

*CUNY’s Other-Than-Tuition-Charges document, section B, part 2.

PUBLIC HOLIDAYS

The Equipment Room is closed on all holidays recognized by the University.

USE OF EQUIPMENT DURING EXTENDED BREAKS

Equipment may be reserved for use during any extended break periods only if required for completion of academic classes/coursework-related projects; equipment is not to be booked for personal, private, or commercial projects. Equipment may not be used to complete work assigned as part of an internship.

Students working in the metropolitan area are subject to the usual procedures and policies stated above.

Students working outside the metropolitan area must get written approval from the Manager of Equipment and AV Services and the Director of Campus Services.

INVENTORY PERIODS

Periodically, the Equipment Room needs to account for all equipment, take stock of gear, and maintain and prepare everything for future equipment access and availability. All gear must be returned before these dates, and checkouts cannot occur during this time. These periods typically occur immediately following the end of a semester.

Newmark J-School is the only j-school with a distinct core research methods instruction program to guide students from the time they begin reporting, spanning research basics to advanced research techniques, and offering a third-semester elective for investigative research techniques. Students tap into their Research Adjuncts and Chief Librarian and Associate Professor Barbara Gray (former director of news research at The New York Times) as news research consultants to guide them to solutions for the toughest research questions. Newmark’s Research Center is a digital and physical space (operated by Library Manager, Tinamarie Vella), solely focused on journalism databases, resources, and research instruction.

Our Research Guides for Reporters, like backgrounding people and companies, and researching nonprofits, will walk you through the research process for complex reporting topics. Newmark students have access to many journalism-specific databases, like AP Newsroom, PIPL search, Nexis, as well as personal digital subscriptions to The New York Times, and The Wall Street Journal via the Research Center.

Newmark’s Research Adjuncts are world-class researchers, fact-checkers, and reporters from Associated Press, ProPublica, Latino USA, THE CITY, and WNYC, who share their research superpowers with students within our core research curriculum.
STUDENT EXPERIENCE
The Student Experience area encompasses Admissions, Student Affairs, Career Services and Alumni Affairs. These departments were brought under one area to provide high quality services and support and to positively enhance the Newmark J-School experience for students and alumni.

Alumni Affairs

SUMMER INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

All students in the M.A. in Journalism and M.A. in Engagement Journalism graduate with on-the-job experience gained during a required summer internship. The school guarantees that every student will be paid at least $4,000, either by the internship partner or, with a stipend through the Newmark J-Corps Internship program. Every year students have the opportunity to apply for a range of exclusive summer internships through this program.

Students receive three academic credits for the internship course. To be eligible to participate in an internship, students must have taken/passed Craft I, Advanced Reporting, Advanced Research, Legal/ Ethical, Multimedia Audio Visual and Multimedia Interactive. Students are responsible for securing their own summer internships. The Office of Career Services, however, works closely with each student to help them find and apply for appropriate internship opportunities. To offer students an advantage, Career Services also partners with employers to secure internships that are exclusive to the Newmark J-School.

Program Requirements
- Students must intern for at least eight weeks, for at least 35 hours a week, for a minimum of 280 hours. Longer internships are also acceptable. Students receiving a stipend through the J-Corps Summer Internship program intern for a maximum of 280-hours.
- Students can fulfill up to half of their summer internship requirement of 280 hours by completing 140 hours on a documentary film, under the supervision of their doc mentor. To receive the 3 academic credits required for their summer internship, students must complete the other 140 hours through a part-time summer internship.
- All internships must be approved by Career Services. To request approval, review the Internship Approval Checklist and launch Experiences in Handshake.
- Internships must involve meaningful news editorial work — no public relations, marketing or advertising internships. Hands-on editorial work includes reporting, writing, research, producing, fact checking, editing, social media, photo, video, interactive, data visualization, audience development and other multimedia forms of journalism.
- To start the approval process, students must launch an Experience on Handshake and select “Summer Internship.” This will alert the Career Services, the internship supervisor and Student Affairs that the student is requesting approval. In order for Student Affairs to approve your internship experience, students must be registered for Advanced Reporting and Advanced Research Techniques during the spring semester. The internship is considered approved once all parties have signed off and Student Affairs registers the student for the academic internship course.
- The summer internship course appears on the fall schedule in your third semester. The office of Student Affairs will register students for the course in CUNYfirst after the student has launched an Experience on Handshake and all required information has been provided by the student and the internship supervisor.
- The Internship Course is 3 credits. The maximum amount of credits students can be enrolled for in the Fall semester is 17. It is the student’s responsibility to ensure that they do not register for more than 14 credits to allow room for the 3 summer internship credits to be included into their schedule in CUNYfirst.
- Students must be provided with a workspace and equipment to do required work. Remote internships are considered on a case-by-case basis.

Grades
The Summer Internship is a pass/fail course. Students are expected to meet deadlines set by the Office of Career Services. This includes, but is not limited to:

- Uploading a professional resume to Handshake in the first semester. Students who do not meet this requirement will receive a mid-semester warning.
- Applying to an internship listed on Handshake by the middle of the second semester. Students who do not meet this requirement will receive a mid-semester warning.
- Students must secure an internship by April 30th.
- Filing two reports during the summer internship: one midway through the summer, the other at the end. Students will receive a prompt via Handshake to complete the reports before they are due. If you do not submit the two required reports, you will receive an incomplete.
Supervisors also submit an evaluation of the students’ work toward the end of the internship. If your supervisor does not submit your evaluation, you will receive an incomplete.

To pass the course, you must earn a positive evaluation from your supervisor. Students who do not, will receive an F and will have to take another summer internship the following year. If that internship is unpaid, you will not be eligible for a J-School stipend.

Mid-summer Internship Report - This survey is a confidential check-in between you and Career Services so we can get a sense of how the internship is going and provide you with support if needed. We encourage you to reach out to us at any time if you experience any issues.

Final Internship Report - This survey will ask you to rate your internship and provide feedback including pros and cons. Your feedback will inform future internship partnerships and will be shared with future students inquiring about previous student experiences.

Once students have accepted a summer internship offer, they will launch an “Experience” on Handshake, where they will upload the offer letter, supply details about the internship and emergency contact information. The summer internship is considered approved once all three parties have reviewed and signed off on the internship: the employer, the student and the Director of Career Services. Students interning outside the New York area are also required to complete additional paperwork to receive academic credit.

J-School Stipend

All summer internship stipends will be processed through your CUNYFirst account. To ensure you receive your stipend in a timely fashion, please enroll in direct deposit via your CUNYFirst account as soon as possible and no later than April 30. If you are already enrolled in direct deposit in CUNYFirst, you need not take any action.

Enroll in direct deposit in CUNYFirst.

The Finance Office will be in touch with students if additional information is needed to process your stipend. At the student’s discretion, student’s have the option to apply their summer internship stipend towards a prior, current, or future semester tuition and fees balance. Finance will work with the students accordingly.

Students traveling outside of New York

Students interning outside the New York area are required to complete additional paperwork to receive academic credit. You will be required to fill out two CUNY forms: Travel Authorization and Travel Waiver form. Find more information about travel, including the guidelines.

Students on academic probation must receive approval by Career Services and the Associate Dean to intern outside of the New York City metropolitan area.

For Students Interning Abroad

We will speak to you via video chat or by phone midway through your internship. This is mandatory and will be arranged in advance. Students travelling abroad are reimbursed for their airfare after the first $500. They are also required to attend safety training before they leave.

Students traveling abroad

You must secure your internship by April 30. You will be required to complete an Internship Abroad Packet by that date as well.

When You Leave Your Internship

Sending handwritten thank you notes to your supervisor and anyone who helped you during your internship is a nice gesture. Gifts, however, are not appropriate.

Note for International Students

F-1 International students must obtain Curricular Practical Training (CPT) Authorization on their I-20 forms before they engage in any paid or unpaid off-campus employment. This includes being published by a non-CUNY publication in relation to your academic studies.

If the off-campus organization has an educational affiliation with the School of Journalism and it is part of the curriculum of the course, and there is no remuneration, students technically could publish an article without a CPT authorization as they are participating in the requirements of their coursework and it would not be employment per the Department of Labor rules.

The unpaid positions that require CPT are for internships and practicums, or other experiences that the Department of Labor can consider as employment, even if unpaid. If the non-CUNY publication/organization has hired the student to write multiple articles for them and they are repeatedly performing a service to the publication/organization and it is not paid, this could be determined as an employment relationship with the organization per the rules of the US Department of Labor. We would recommend that the student obtain a CPT authorization to protect themselves from an immigration officer (USCIS, CBP, or US Consulate) later determining that it was employment per the Department of Labor guidelines and a CPT should have been authorized. In other words, getting the CPT for unpaid off-campus employment/service/work protects the legal status of the student now and in the future.

F-1 International students must submit a completed CPT Request Form to the Office of International Students to apply for their CPT authorization before beginning any off-campus employment. Please enroll in the appropriate CPT course indicated on the CPT Request Form prior to submitting the completed CPT Request Form to the Office of International Students.

Once approved, the Office of International Students at the Graduate Center, CUNY will issue you a new I-20 form with CPT authorization on the 2nd page. You may begin your off-campus employment once you have received your I-20 form with CPT authorization and the start date of the CPT authorization has arrived.

CPT is issued for a specific employer. International students will need to apply for a CPT authorization for each off-campus employer. Please apply for CPT for each outside publisher as soon as a story pitch is approved by an editor. To maintain F-1 status, it is important not to begin any work for the employer until you have received your CPT authorization.

Please note that F-1 international students must complete two semesters enrolled full-time before they are eligible to apply for CPT.

Read further information regarding CPT.

SPRING/FALL ACADEMIC INTERNSHIPS

Academic internships for credit are not offered during the first semester. However, students who wish to intern in the second or third semesters, in addition to the required summer internship, may do so. Students must get written permission from their advisers and the director of Career Services by launching an Experience in Handshake. Additionally, Student Affairs reviews and confirms the number of hours the student is able to intern.

Students in good standing who have a GPA of 3.7 may intern for 16 hours per week for a total of 240 hours during the semester. Students with a GPA between 3.0 and 3.7 may work up to 10 hours a week for a maximum of 150 hours per semester. Students should consider their school work load and the additional internship responsibilities before accepting an internship. Students on academic probation are not permitted to intern during the academic semester.

Only one internship — either the spring or fall — may be used for graduation credit. The student is required to submit one internship report toward the end of the internship.

Internships must involve meaningful news editorial work — no public relations, marketing or advertising internships. Hands-on editorial work includes reporting, writing, research, producing, fact checking, editing, social media, audience development, photo, video, interactive, data visualization and other multimedia forms of journalism.

Students must receive a positive written evaluation from their internship supervisor to receive a passing grade.

To start the approval process, students must launch an Experience on Handshake and select “Academic Internship.” This will alert the Career Services, the faculty advisors and Student Affairs that the student wishes to do a spring or fall internship. The internship is considered approved once all parties have signed off on. Student Affairs registers the student for the academic internship course.

The Office of Student Affairs supports and enhances students’ experiences at the Neuman J-School. We have strong relationships with faculty and other departments to help students achieve academic success by working collaboratively in the area of academic affairs. Students needing assistance in navigating their coursework, or who need support in wellness should know the Student Affairs Office is always here to help guide them to multiple resources that can help them succeed.

Ultimately, Neuman J-School shouldn’t just be about the classroom experience. Take advantage of the myriad of events at the school. Plus, students are also welcome to partake in the Graduate Center’s wide range of public events, including lectures, symposia, performances, and workshops.

CUNY is a huge network and many great CUNY-wide events are open to all students in the system. You can also sign up for a bi-weekly event newsletter.

The Office offers support to students in the following areas:
- New student, second semester and third semester orientations
- One-on-one academic advisement
- Subject Concentration and Electives Information Sessions
- Supportive liaison with Graduate Center offices, such as the registrar and financial aid

CAMPUS EVENTS

The Office of Student Affairs hosts several events/activities throughout each semester. Mid-semester there is a de-stressor program, where students are able to socialize as well as partake in relaxation activities such as yoga with a certified instructor and meditation.

Other events include game nights, movie nights, student club panel events, Graduate Student Council socials/town halls, as well as brown bag speaker series and more.

REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS

Elective and subject concentration information sessions are offered prior to registration so students can learn more about the courses they can choose from. Check the Campus Calendar for dates for these information sessions.

Each student must meet with their academic advisor prior to registration in order to discuss course selections for the coming semester. Each student will complete the Course Interest Worksheet and meet with Student Affairs for final review. Before registration opens be sure to check your CUNYfirst account to ensure all holds are cleared and you can navigate the system. More information on registering can be found on our website.

All students are required to be in status each semester. This means that students must either be registered for a course of study or be on an approved leave of absence. Individuals who are not in status will be considered withdrawn from the Newmark J-School.

Registration information is given out at orientation to new students. Information for subsequent semesters will be available during informational meetings, or through the Office of Student Affairs. It is expected that all registrations will be completed by the end of the registration period.

Students delinquent in their financial accounts or obligations to the library or with respect to any equipment loans from the Equipment Room will not be permitted to register, take a leave of absence, or officially withdraw; nor will they be issued transcripts or degree diplomas. In addition, students who fail to meet satisfactory progress requirements or to comply with New York State immunization laws (see following), or who have outstanding obligations to the Offices of Financial Aid, Admissions, or Bursar’s Office may not be permitted to register, take a leave of absence, or officially withdraw.

STUDENT ACCESSIBILITY SERVICES

A disability is any physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities. A person is considered to be a person with a disability if they have a disability, have a record of the disability, or is regarded as having the disability. Under the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, qualified persons with disabilities are entitled to reasonable accommodations to achieve nondiscriminatory access to programs, services, and activities at the Newmark J-School. Some examples of covered disabilities are visual and hearing impairments, mobility impairments, impairment of hand function, and such “hidden” disabilities as AIDS/HIV, learning disabilities, ADD and ADHD, heart conditions, chronic fatigue syndrome, and being in recovery from substance abuse.

The Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism does not discriminate on the basis of disability in the admission and retention of students. To ensure equal access for persons with disabilities to all academic and other programs, services, and activities of the Newmark J-School, as required by law, appropriate accommodations will be made. These may include auxiliary aids and services for students with visual impairments (readers/library assistants and such technology as adaptive computer software and hardware, etc.); qualified sign-language interpreters; scribes; extended or divided time on examinations for students with learning disabilities or reduced physical stamina; adjustments in course load when appropriate; voice-recognition software; use of a computer for exams; and taping classes.

To request accommodation, you must do the following:

- Complete student accessibility form
• Attach acceptable documentation (IEPs, doctor’s note, undergraduate records)
• Submit the form and all paperwork to the Office of Student Affairs

SERVICES FOR VETERANS

CUNY and the Newmark J-School is committed to supporting the needs of our veterans. Find out more information on funding and programs that CUNY offers veterans.

STUDENT LIFE

Governance Council
The governing body of the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism is the Governance Council. This body is composed of the Dean, the Associate Dean, faculty members, program directors and three elected student representatives. The Graduate Student Council oversees selection of student representatives on the Governance Council. The following committees require at least one student council member: Curriculum & Degree Requirements, Executive, Technology & Library, Outcomes, Campus Life & Facilities, Diversity, and Strategic Planning. The Governance Council and each of its standing committees will convene at least once each semester and as many times per semester as members deem it necessary. All meetings of the Council and its committees are open to all members of the journalism school’s community.

Graduate Student Council
The Graduate Student Council (GSC) represents the student body. This organization will meet with a staff liaison (Associate Director of Student Affairs) to discuss student needs and concerns every two weeks throughout the semester. The Associate Director and GSC oversees the election of new members from the entering class at the beginning of the fall semester. It will oversee a second election at the end of that same semester to elect new council members. Members will serve for one calendar year.

Students voted to sit on the GSC become eligible to represent the student-body on the Governance Council and CUNY University Student Senate. Early each semester, the GSC members discuss which committees they will serve on. Students who are not elected, or do not wish to serve on the GSC on a regular basis, can still come to GSC and any committee meetings. The meetings are announced several weeks prior on the student listserv.

To learn more, visit the Student Council page on our website.

Emergency Financial Assistance
The Newmark J-School recognizes that emergencies can happen at any time and that students may experience financial hardships that require assistance during their course of study. The school tries to help students who are experiencing a personal financial emergency and who have exhausted other avenues by making emergency funds available on a limited basis. This assistance is intended to address an event that is non-recurring, sudden, unexpected, and/or critical, which may include but is not limited to a family crisis, acute illness, natural disaster or emergency, etc.

Applicants must be currently enrolled students and in good academic standing. You will need to provide a statement of need outlining your circumstances, a monthly budget and formal documentation for your application to be considered. Please contact the Student Affairs office (studentaffairs@journalism.cuny.edu) for additional information.
Newmark Grocery Food Pantry
The J-School launched a program to provide extra food for students in need after 40% of them reported in a survey that they had an insufficient amount of food at least part of the year. The Newmark Grocery is our campus food pantry. We ask students needing to visit the Grocery to fill out a form. The information provided on this form will remain confidential. Absolutely no information identifying students will be given to any other department, or entity outside the Newmark School. Please know some of these questions are required by our partner, Food Bank of NYC. Your answers to other questions may be used to direct you to social services agencies. Or, it may be used to assist in fundraising for the Grocery.

Student Affairs Newsletter
Student Affairs sends out a biweekly newsletter to inform students of important events happening at the school and the CUNY community. The newsletter also includes important information regarding document submission due dates and general deadlines.

Sorbonne Paris Exchange Program
Under our exchange program with the University of Paris Sorbonne’s CELSA graduate journalism school, up to two graduating J-School students can take a fourth – spring – semester to study and work (at a paid internship) in Paris.

To apply for the Paris semester, you need some French – as part of the application process, we’ll test your level of mastery with a one-hour French exam – but you need not be fluent. Previous participants with minimal French language skills have had successful Paris experiences. Students who are not already proficient in French are strongly encouraged to study before arriving in Paris and are required to pursue French courses (through CELSA/ Sorbonne) during the semester in Paris.

In order to be eligible for this program, all degree requirements (including a completed/approved capstone/practicum) must be met prior to the beginning of the fourth semester abroad.

The semester in Paris involves both academic and internship commitments.

You have a choice of two curriculum options at CELSA:
• The independent-study program (chosen by most CUNY J-School students): This program, tailored to our students’ needs, has three requirements: 1) a four-day-a-week internship (see details below); 2) a long-form piece (In English. Can be print, audio, video or multimedia); 3) enrollment in a French-language-for-foreign students class at CELSA or another Sorbonne campus. These classes usually meet twice a week. CELSA will explain to potential internship partners that you may need a bit of time off – a long lunch hour, e.g. – to fulfill this requirement. About the long-form piece: We have samples of work done by previous participants.
• The apprentissage program (for those with fluent/excellent French) combines a four-days-a-week internship with a day (Fridays) of CELSA classes. These classes are part of the “regular” CELSA apprentissage program; you’ll be taking them alongside CELSA students who are also combining internships with study.
STUDENT SERVICES AVAILABLE THROUGH THE GRADUATE CENTER
Wellness Center

The Wellness Center has two services, the Student Counseling Service and the Student Health Service.

Fitness classes are also available through the Wellness Center for GC and journalism students, faculty, and staff. Classes have included Intermediate Yoga, Hatha Yoga, and Pilates.

By special arrangement with Baruch College, enrolled Graduate Center students have been allowed to become members of the Baruch College Athletics and Recreation Complex (ARC) and the John Jay College Cardiovascular Fitness Center (899 Tenth Avenue, Suite 601).

More information can be found here on the Fitness page of the Grad Center’s website.

Counseling Services

When you request a clinical or academic service, a counselor contacts you within a week or two to schedule an initial tele-health meeting.

At the initial meeting, we ask you about the concerns that have prompted you to request services as well as about the broader context of your life. Then, together with you, we think through what would be the best service or services to meet your needs going forward. If a service that we do not have at the Wellness Center is most appropriate, such as open-ended counseling or a medication consultation, we help you find an in-network or low cost referral that would be a good fit for you. At our Center, we offer short term individual counseling—approximately 10-12 weekly 45 minute sessions.

The center also offers groups and workshops on specific psychological topics and issues such as Navigating Racial Microaggressions, LGBTQIA support, Getting What You Need From Your Advisor, Interpersonal Process group, Parenting Support, The Impostor Syndrome, Perfectionism and Procrastination.

You can also go to our website and in the self-help section you will find a Wellbeing Video Series on topics such as Health Anxiety, Mindfulness, Racial Battle Fatigue, Dissertation Burnout, and Self-Care for Graduate Students. You will also find articles and resources there on common concerns that graduate students have about academia, mental health, and social justice. Visit our website or email us for additional information.

HEALTH SERVICES

The Wellness Center’s Health Service provides health and wellness education and information throughout the year, including presentations, workshops, health screening events and the yearly comprehensive Wellness Festival, held during the spring (pandemic permitting). Although students who are ill or require routine health care should seek service outside The Graduate Center, we can offer information and referrals to assist you in finding the health care you need. Contact us at wellness@gc.cuny.edu or https://www.gc.cuny.edu/wellness-center
HEALTH INSURANCE

All students are strongly advised to have some form of health and accident coverage, as medical costs in the U.S. are high. International students still living overseas are urged to arrange for insurance in their home countries to provide coverage in the U.S., at least until an alternative plan can be arranged.

The university furnishes information to help students choose an insurance plan either to continue coverage or provide new coverage.

Limited health services are available to all registered students through the Wellness Center, located at The Graduate Center.

Eligible students may sign up for Medicaid and Child Health Plus through the Exchange at any time. To view health insurance options available on the Exchange, visit the NY State of Health website or call 1-855-355-5777.

For more information about health insurance options, visit the Office of Citywide Health Insurance Access, or find out when you can speak with an Enrollment Navigator on your campus by visiting your campus Health Services Center.

The Graduate Center can facilitate communication between students and the insurance company representatives. Please call (212) 817-7408 for further information or to make an appointment to discuss questions you may have. The Graduate Center provides only information on voluntary insurance programs and is not responsible for students’ choices. They have a helpful guide which can be found on the Graduate Center website.

Office of International Students

Linda Asaro,
Director of International Student Services

Graduate Center,
365 Fifth Avenue,
Room 7200

The Office of International Students at the Graduate Center provides advice and assistance to students from outside the United States, particularly with regard to immigration issues relating to F-1 student status and J-1 Exchange Visitor student category. Each semester, the office conducts a special orientation session for international students. The office also assists students in understanding American cultural behavior and in interpreting various bureaucratic procedural requirements. Upon their arrival in New York City, new international students MUST contact the Office of International Students as soon as possible so that the office can record their immigration documents and verify status.

The U.S. government regulates the immigration status of international students through the Student and Exchange Visitor Information System (SEVIS). International students are personally responsible for complying with all government regulations that relate to their F-1 or J-1 immigration status. Therefore, each student is urged to familiarize himself or herself with the regulations and procedures that apply to their specific status. Students should keep copies of all documents relating to their immigration status and bring their passport, I-94, and current Form I-20 or DS-2019 whenever contacting this office. SEVIS requires immediate reporting of any changes in an international student's personal or academic information. In particular, this includes the following:

- Change in residence address
- Change in academic level
- Change in academic program

International students with any questions regarding any aspect of the immigration regulations or their stay in the United States should consult the Office of International Students in the Graduate Center (see above for contact information). International students must consult this office for information on the following:

- Obtaining an initial Form I-20 (F-1 status) or Form DS-2019 (J-1 status)
- Change of address in the United States
- Change of legal name
- On-campus employment regulations and procedures
- Off-campus employment
- Travel outside the United States and re-entry
- Inviting a spouse or dependent children to the United States
- Extension of legal stay in the United States
- Passport and visa information
- Transfer to another school
- Change of status to or from F-1 or J-1

International students must consult the Office of International Students:

- Before accepting employment of any kind; and
- Before discontinuing their studies (i.e., leave of absence, withdrawals from the program, or termination of studies)

Suggestions or advice concerning immigration, employment, or taxation that are made by other students, or advice and/or permissions given by an administrator or faculty member, do not constitute authorization for, or compliance with, immigration regulations. The only authorized interpretation of immigration regulations is through SEVIS.
regulations pertaining to your student status is from an International Student Counselor in the Office of International Students at The Graduate Center.

ON-CAMPUS EMPLOYMENT

Federal regulations allow F-1 status students to work on campus for up to 20 hours per week during the semester. There is no hourly limit for on-campus employment during vacation periods when school is not in session. F-1 status students at the Graduate Center are authorized to work at any of the CUNY campuses and the 20 hours per week limit applies to all combined on-campus employment.

J-1 status students must receive on-campus employment authorization in SEVIS prior to commencing on-campus employment. Please submit your on-campus employment letter to the Office of International Students to receive such authorization.

OFF-CAMPUS EMPLOYMENT

International Students must not begin any kind of employment off campus (i.e., outside CUNY) without (a) receiving authorization from either the Office of International Students or U.S. Immigration Services (USCIS) and (b) determining the applicable limit on the number of hours of employment permitted per week, the duration for which the employment may continue and employment reporting requirements. Students who work outside the regulations will be in violation of their Immigration Status.

a. Curricular Practical Training: Before graduation, an International Student may apply for “Curricular Practical Training” (CPT). See this link for general information about CPT. Make an appointment to discuss before accepting a teaching, research, or other employment job.

b. Optional Practical Training: To apply for Extended F-1 Status after graduation, an International Student must discuss their plans four months in advance of the expected graduation date. An International Student Counselor in the Office of International Students at the Graduate Center-CUNY will discuss the eligibility and application requirements for “Optional Practical Training” (OPT). See this link for general information about OPT. Make an appointment to discuss the timing and procedure for OPT four months before planning to graduate.

1. Where do I find information on Tuition and Fees rates charged by the School?
   - Tuition and Fees estimates can be found on the School’s website.

   - All tuition rates are initiated and increased only by the CUNY Board of Trustees and implemented by the CUNY Central Office.
   - There is no tuition increase by the Board of Trustees for the 2022-2023 academic year.
   - The tuition and fees estimates on the school’s website includes the annual increase and is subject to CUNY Board of Trustees’ approval every fall semester. • The 3rd semester portion of scholarships awarded to students by the school, is usually based on the in-state residency tuition rate and the student scholarship recipient filing for residency in that 3rd semester. This does not apply to international students who may have received a full scholarship from the school.

5. When am I charged the Program Change Fee?
   - Students are required to pay an $18 Program Change Fee each time they make certain program changes, on or after the first day of classes (except for students who only drop courses), based upon the official CUNY calendar.
   - The fee is charged per occurrence per day, but no more than once per day
   - The fee(s) charged will cover one or more program changes made at the same time. Examples of changes incurring a fee:
     • Addition of a course or courses; changing from one course to another; changing from one section of a course to another section of the same course.
     • A Program Change Fee is not applicable to college-initiated changes. Examples are:
       • The college cancels or withdraws a course, whether or not the student substitutes another course; the college changes the hours of the course or makes other substantive changes that provides the student with justification for a change, or the college requests the student to transfer from one section to another section.

6. When am I charged the Maintenance of Matriculation Fee?
   - Graduate students who wish to drop out a semester and maintain status for graduation must apply for matriculation with the Graduate Center Registrar’s Office.
   - A resident student is required to pay $225 and a non-resident student is required to pay $370 matriculation fee respectively.
   - To maintain enrollment when the students stop attending classes each semester.
   - The fee is due immediately once charges are reflected in CUNYfirst and is nonrefundable.
   - Not required for Summer sessions
   - Students paying this fee do not pay the Consolidated Services Fee

   The school charges every student once every spring semester, a $200 Intercession/January Academy fee. Click here to learn more about the January Academy.

8. If I return for a 4th Semester, in addition to the tuition charges, will I also be charged mandatory fees including the intercession/January Academy fee (spring term only)?

Deadline and Options for Paying Your Tuition and Fees

1. When is the deadline for paying my tuition and fees each semester? And how can I make a payment?
   Your tuition and fees are due before the first day of classes each semester, EXCEPT if 100% of your tuition and fees will be paid by any of the following or a combination thereof:

- CRAIG NEWMARK GRADUATE SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM AT CUNY (NEWMARK J-SCHOOL) SCHOLARSHIP: These funds will be disbursed in CUNYfirst by the CUNY Graduate Center Financial Aid Office as a payment toward your tuition and/or fees charges - usually within the first three weeks of the semester or earlier.   Note: If you pay via the above two methods, please allow at least one week for your payments to be reflected in your CUNYfirst account.

3. Can I pay my out-of-pocket balance via more than one method above?
Yes, providing that your payments are made or you have set up a payment plan by or before the first day of classes (August 25, 2022) for the Fall 2022 semester and/or as indicated above.

- ID Card Replacement and Press Pass Replacement: Students should notify the Newmark J-School Finance Department by email at finance@journalism.cuny.edu for paying the fine. Please include your CUNYfirst EmplID in the email. The Newmark J-School Finance Department will then reply to the email with a link to an invoice from Square (online payment vendor) to pay the fine by credit/debit card online.   - Pay by check or money order. Indicate commitment deposit in the memo section on your check or money order. Checks or money orders should be made payable to Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism at CUNY and mailed to:

- Refund of Commitment Deposit: Based on CUNY’s Tuition and Fee Manual, an incoming graduate student for the Fall term has until April 1 immediately prior to the start of the Fall term to which they’ve committed to attend to request a refund of their commitment deposit. If a refund is not requested by that date, then the commitment deposit becomes non-refundable. If the student is enrolled, then the commitment deposit goes toward payment of the student’s tuition and fees.

Policy for Non-payment

What is the Newmark J-School’s policy for non-payment of my tuition and fees balance? If you owe 100% tuition and fee charges, or a partial balance on your tuition and fees charges after you have deducted any expected scholarships, loans, 3rd party payments, and/or Nelnet or other payment plans (with School/Bursar), please note that you will be required to pay said balance in full, or make payment arrangements. Said payment arrangements must both be made and Finance must be informed (via Finance@ journalism.cuny.edu) at least 5 days before the first day of classes. By the end of the second day of classes 8/26/22, if you have not made such arrangements, you will receive an email from the Newmark J-School Finance Department, followed by an email from the Associate Dean, if applicable, indicating the following ramifications:

- If by the end of the fourth day (8/30/2022) of the semester, arrangements to pay your tuition have not been made, the Dean/Associate Dean, at their discretion may cancel your class schedule. Schedules can be reinstated when payment plans have been made, as long as there remains space in classes. Keep in mind you must re-enroll in classes before the add deadline (8/31/2022) for the semester. Click here for CUNY add/drop dates.

- If by the add deadline date (8/31/2022), payment arrangements still have not been made, you will no longer be considered enrolled in the Newmark J-School. Thus your Newmark J-School ID Card will be deactivated and you will not have access to the building or the campus. Additionally, you will need to file a readmission form to re-enroll. Students should note readmission will be considered for the semester following the one a student’s enrollment was canceled, i.e. if a student’s schedule is canceled in the Fall, a student can be readmitted in the Spring.

- If you still have an unpaid balance at the end of the semester, the school will take next steps to send your account to an external collection agency per CUNY’s policy.

Refund of Tuition Paid, and Withdrawals & Deferrals from Classes (including refunds and tuition liability after withdrawing/deferring from classes)

How will refunds be processed under CUNYFirst?
Only the CUNY Central Office, not the Newmark J-School or the CUNY Graduate Center, can process refunds. Click here for more info.

How will I receive my refund?
The two options available for receiving your refund are as follows:

1. Direct Deposit to your bank account. You can enroll by logging into your CUNYFirst Student Center module and, under Financials, choose Enroll in Direct Deposit or click on this link. Note that Direct Deposit should be set up at least two weeks prior to your scheduled refund date in order to receive your refund via this method. If direct deposit is not set up by the time the refund process is run your refund will be issued via check.

2. A Check from the NYS Comptroller’s Office is mailed to your address on file in CUNYFirst. (There is no action required on your part for this method.) However, given the pandemic, we encourage you to sign up for direct deposit as indicated above.

What about a financial aid loan refund?
See the two refund options above. Also, note that if you receive a loan refund and you withdraw from all of your classes you will be responsible for returning the loan refund to the School. Failure to do so will result in a charge being placed on your account equal to the loan refund amount and subsequently, your account will be sent to the Collections.
How does my 3rd party payer get a refund?
The Newmark J-School Finance Office will issue refunds directly to your 3rd party payer.

What if I overpaid on my Nelnet payment plan, how do I obtain a refund?
Nelnet refunds will be returned to the same credit card used for payment. These refunds are processed each Wednesday and should show on your credit card account within 7 to 10 business days from the date processed.

Nelnet refund of payments made out of your checking accounts will be processed by the CUNY Central Office based on your enrollment for refund options: via direct deposit or refund check from the NYS Comptroller’s Office as described above.

Tuition and fee payments from foreign funds are generally NON-REFUNDABLE. Any excess after conversion will not be refunded to the payer but instead will become an advance toward payment for future semesters’ tuition and fees charges. In cases where it is the student’s last semester or a student drops out during the refund period, with approval from the college business manager, payments will be refunded to the original foreign bank account from where the funds were initially transferred.

If I withdraw/defer from classes, will I receive a refund of any payments made and will I be liable for tuition charges?
If you have registered for classes and plan to defer or withdraw from classes, you may or may not receive a refund or you may or may not be liable for tuition charges depending on when you defer or withdraw from classes. Please review the table below:

A 3rd Party will be paying my tuition and fees and I need to obtain an official bill or written confirmation of my registration, how do I obtain said information?

Do scholarship/stipends/grants for all students get taxed?
Per CUNY’s policy we are unable to provide an answer to this question nor provide tax-related advice. Students should reach out to their tax advisers/preparer. However, scholarships/stipends/grants are reported to all applicable students and to the IRS by CUNY Central on Form 1098-T, only if the student’s out-of-pocket payment is more than their scholarship/stipend/grants. In other words, if the student’s out-of-pocket payment is less than their scholarship/stipend/grants or the student has no out-of-pocket payments, then Form 1098-T will not be issued to the student nor the IRS.

How do I obtain a copy of my IRS Form 1098T?
You can download a copy of your IRS Form 1098T from your CUNYfirst account or submit an email from your journalism email to Bursar@gc.cuny.edu.

How do I sign up for Work Study to work on campus?
Students must indicate on their FAFSA (federal loan application) (check the box) if they are interested in work-study. Please contact the Students Affairs Alexa.Maurer@journalism.cuny.edu for more information and to determine if you qualify and can be assigned to work.

For more information or assistance, contact the Newmark J-School Finance Team at Finance@journalism.cuny.edu.

Scholarships, Federal Aid, and Work-Study

J-SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS

All accepted students are considered for J-School scholarships. No separate application is needed. Awards are offered for three semesters and students are notified of their award when they receive their admissions offers.

Students do not need to maintain a 3.0 minimum GPA to keep their scholarships. If a student goes into academic probation due to a GPA that has fallen under a 3.0, the student scholarship will not be suspended.
EXTERNAL SCHOLARSHIPS

We encourage all students to apply for outside scholarships and awards. Students can find more information regarding journalism-related scholarships on our website. As soon as you accept an outside scholarship, please inform the journalism school’s director of student affairs and the Graduate Center’s Office of Financial Aid. Your financial aid award may be adjusted based on the amount of the outside scholarship. If a student does not immediately notify the Office of Financial Aid that they have accepted an outside scholarship, they risk having to repay the difference later that academic year.

STUDENT LOANS AND FEDERAL WORK STUDY

In order to be considered for federal financial aid, including student loans and federal work study, incoming students are required to first complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid followed by any requirements sent to you via CunyFirst. For information on maximum amounts awarded, interest rates and repayment terms please visit https://studentaid.gov/.

The FAFSA is available beginning October 1 on the Department of Education’s (DOE) federal student loan site and is to be submitted online to the DOE. Students must input the Graduate Center’s school code 004765. We encourage students to file as soon as possible.

Students should follow the link above to secure their loans and must accept their loans in CunyFirst. All first-time borrowers must complete an entrance counseling session, also known as an entrance interview, accessible on the DOE’s student loan site, www.studentloans.ed.gov.

The online CUNYfirst system is a student’s first line of communication with the Graduate Center’s Office of Financial Aid. Please check CUNYfirst regularly to determine whether your financial aid application is complete or requires additional documentation in order to be processed. When in doubt, email financialaid@gc.cuny.edu with any financial aid concerns.

You may receive notice from either the Graduate Center or DOE when it’s time to complete a Master Promissory Note (MPN). The MPN is a contract that affirms your agreement to repay Award letters, which students should read carefully for messages from the Office of Financial Aid, will begin to be emailed in June, if not earlier, provided that the student has filed the FAFSA. Any changes will also be reflected in the student’s CUNYFirst account, where students can also view notifications regarding missing documents or other requests.

Please note: Financial aid is not disbursed until the first week of classes. Therefore, students who arrive early to New York City should plan an alternative means of financing living expenses until then.

Students receiving federal financial aid are required to make satisfactory academic progress, which is defined as maintaining a 3.0 GPA as well as passing 66% of the total credits attempted, including courses students withdraw from during the semester.

FEDERAL WORK-STUDY PROGRAM

Federal Work-Study awards are based solely on financial need as defined by federal law. Federal Work-Study awards are packaged each summer for the following academic year. Because Federal Work-Study funds are limited, only students who have their FAFSA on file by the priority deadline (March 1) are initially considered for awards.
Each semester, student employment opportunities will be shared with the campus community and will note FWS eligibility in the position descriptions.

Second Semester Students
Financial aid is not disbursed until around the second week of February. In the interim, please plan an alternative means of financing your living expenses.

Financial aid is an annual process. Students will need to fill out a new FAFSA (available in October) to receive financial aid for their final semester(s).

Students who want to continue as fourth semester students must inform the journalism school's Office of Student Affairs by the end of their second semester. Students will not be considered for financial aid for the fourth semester if they are not on the list of students provided by the Office of Student Affairs to the Office of Financial Aid. Interested students should meet with the Office of Student Affairs to discuss their plans, and address any questions they have regarding their academic goals for their final semester. This consultation is required if you need financial aid to help cover fourth semester living or tuition expenses.

Graduation Requirements
Every student who receives a loan MUST complete an online exit interview at www.studentloans.gov or schedule an appointment with the Graduate Center’s Office of Financial Aid. If completing the exit interview online, students must take a screenshot of the confirmation page and email it to the Office of Financial Aid at financialaid@gc.cuny.edu. If students do not complete the exit interview, or show proof of completion, there will be a hold placed on their CUNYfirst account. The hold will prevent students from obtaining transcripts and other official documents. Please complete the exit interview immediately after receiving final grades.

Frequently Asked Questions

- Are Perkins Loans or subsidized Stafford Loans available?
  Subsidized Stafford loans are no longer available to graduate students as of July 1, 2012. Unfortunately, we are no longer able to offer Perkins loans as the program is discontinuing.

- Is work-study available?
  Federal work-study is awarded based on a student Estimated Family Contribution (EFC) of zero, the date you completed the FAFSA, and availability of funds. Filing your FAFSA earlier increases your chances of receiving work study.

- At what point in the application process do I request the loan amount needed for the academic year?
  When accepting the loan on CUNYfirst.

- I’ve received my financial aid award letter—what must I do in order to accept the amount loaned?
  Accept the award in CUNYFirst.

- Do you borrow what you will need or more?
  While it is best for all involved if students properly anticipate their needs, we recognize that this is not always the case. Students wishing to increase or decrease their loans should contact financialaid@gc.cuny.edu as soon as possible to make that arrangement.

- How will the Office of Financial Aid communicate with me and vice versa?
  Primarily through CUNYFirst and email. E-mails will be sent to students’ journalism.cuny.edu accounts only.
• What happens to my financial aid if I withdraw?

An exit interview is required when the student no longer registers for least six credits, withdraws or graduates. A student who withdraws may not be eligible to keep some or all of their federal student loans. A calculation is performed to determine how much federal student aid was “earned” within thirty days of withdrawal.

UNDERGRADUATE LOAN DEFERMENT INFORMATION

If students borrowed federal student loans as an undergraduate, they will be eligible for an in-school deferment as long as they are enrolled at least half-time (6 credits). To request this, students should contact the lender to request a deferment form and submit the deferment form to the University Registrar’s Office at the Graduate Center. The City University of New York participates in the National Student Loan Database Clearinghouse. Students should check with the lender to determine if they are able to access the Clearinghouse information. If they are, students will not need to submit a deferment form and the lender will be able to confirm enrollment status after the third week of classes.

DIRECT DEPOSIT

We strongly encourage all students to establish direct deposit as soon as possible. Click here to sign up for direct deposit.

REPAYMENT INFORMATION

You don’t have to begin repaying most federal student loans until after you leave college or drop below half-time enrollment. Your loan servicer or lender must provide you with a loan repayment schedule that states when your first payment is due, the number and frequency of payments, and the amount of each payment. Keep in mind that your loan may have a grace period.

Once the loan enters repayment, students may have options in terms of their repayment plan. These may include:

Standard Repayment

Under this plan, you will pay a fixed amount of at least $50 each month for up to 10 years. This plan results in the lowest total interest paid of any repayment plan. If you have not selected a repayment plan by the time repayment begins, your loan(s) will be placed on the Standard Repayment Plan.

Extended Repayment Plan

Fixed Monthly Payment Option: Under this plan, you will pay a fixed amount of at least $50 each month for up to 25 years. To be eligible for this plan, your Direct Loan balance must be greater than $30,000. Repayment under this plan will result in lower total interest paid when compared to graduated plans with similar terms.

Graduated Repayment Plan

Under this plan, you will pay a minimum payment amount at least equal to the amount of interest accrued monthly for a period between 10 and 30 years. Your payments start out low, and then increase every two years. Generally, the amount you will repay over the term of your loan will be higher under the Graduated Repayment Plan than under the Standard Repayment Plan. This plan may be beneficial if your income is low now but is likely to steadily increase.

Income Driven Plans

Under all three plans, any remaining loan balance is forgiven if your federal student loans are not fully repaid at the end of the repayment period. For any income-driven repayment plan, the repayment period includes periods of economic hardship deferment and periods of repayment under certain other repayment plans. Whether you ultimately have a balance left to be forgiven at the end of your repayment period depends on a number of factors, such as how quickly your income rises and how large your income is relative to your debt. Because of these factors, you may fully repay your loan prior to the end of your repayment period.

Income-Based Repayment Plan (IBR)
Generally 15 percent of your discretionary income, but never more than the 10-year Standard Repayment Plan amount. Repayment period is 25 years.

New Income-Based Repayment (New IBR)
Generally 10% of your discretionary income, but never more than the 10-year Standard Repayment Plan amount. Repayment period is 20 years.

Pay As You Earn Repayment Plan (PAYE)
Generally 10 percent of your discretionary income, but never more than the 10-year Standard Repayment Plan amount. Repayment period is for 20 years.

Revised Pay As You Earn (RePAYE)
Generally 10% of your discretionary income with no cap.

Income-Contingent Repayment Plan (ICR Plan)
The lesser of the following: 20 percent of your discretionary income or what you would pay on a repayment plan with a fixed payment over the course of 12 years, adjusted according to your income. Repayment period is for 25 years.

Please go to www.studentloans.gov for a more detailed explanation of each plan.

Financial Aid for International Students

International students do not qualify for federal loans and work-study, and school scholarships are very limited. Eligibility for off-campus employment is also limited due to immigration regulations. These students can apply for journalism-related scholarships as well as be considered for college assistant positions on campus, and we also recommend visiting the International Journalists’ Network website, https://ijnet.org/, for a list of web links to scholarships and fellowships. International students may be eligible to borrow an alternative loan from a bank. International students will need to find a credit-worthy co-signer who is a U.S. citizen or Permanent Resident (green card holder).
STUDENT SAFETY
As a regular part of your courses, you may be asked to work in parts of the city that may be unfamiliar to you and to cover incidents and events that may unexpectedly present dangerous situations. Instructors will never knowingly put students at undue risk, but conditions can become unsafe quickly. If you feel you have been asked or are required to cover an event or story that makes you uncomfortable about your safety, discuss the assignment with your instructor or with staff from the Office of Student Affairs.

If you find yourself in a situation in which you fear for your safety, get out. There will be other stories.

Police departments do not always recognize the right of journalists to cover stories. Lately, there have been increasing confrontations with officers who want to prevent reporting. If you are threatened by law enforcement, calmly and politely display your press pass and explain your presence. If you are ordered by law enforcement personnel to leave or move, do so.

If you are arrested or detained while covering a story, your first call should be to an attorney. We have a couple of options for you:

1. The National Lawyers Guild has lawyers (and law students supervised by experienced lawyers) available to represent (pro bono) people arrested or charged for participating in or covering demonstrations. The arrest/jail support hotline is (212) 679-6018. Most likely, once you are brought to the precinct and present identification, you will be released with a return date, rather than being held and arraigned. More information here.

2. Clifford Chance, an international law firm with a large office in New York, has also volunteered to assist any student with a legal problem, without charge. Associate Carlisle Overbey, (212.878.8504, cell 704.299.3579, carlisle.overbey@cliffordchance.com) has agreed to take calls from students needing legal assistance.

After you speak to an attorney, you should, if you are able to, contact someone at the school: your instructor; Anthony LaViscount, director of Student Affairs (646-758-7853); John Mancini, Director of Editorial Projects (917-951-8577); or John Scully, director of Public Safety (201-906-4084).

Student Safety Protocols

Before you leave

- Make sure someone knows where you are going and what you are doing. Leave your cell phone number with someone who knows you are in the field.
- Be sure your cell phone is charged.
- Make sure you have some money on you, but don’t carry too much.
- Always know where you are going. Just in case there is a problem with getting maps on your phone, print out a map of the area where you are going before you leave.
- Always travel with an adequate MetroCard balance.
- Think about what you are wearing and what you are carrying. Would these items stand out and make you a potential target for theft or assault? Carry only the equipment you need.
- Research neighborhoods in which you will be reporting so you have a sense of the community.

In the field

- If you are in the field at night, take a buddy.
- Don’t leave equipment or other valuables in view. It’s an invitation for thieves.
- When walking around, stay alert to your surroundings. Don’t walk around while you are talking on the phone or listening. to music on headphones. Be conscious of who is around you.

- Avoid secluded locations. As much as possible, do your reporting and interviews in well-lit, public areas.
- Walk with a self-assured stride. Look confident and in control. Keep your head up and look around; make brief eye contact. Always project that you have a destination or a purpose.
- If you hear someone walking behind you, change direction & pace. Walk towards an open business, another group, or traffic. Avoid isolation and confrontation.

For tips on crime prevention and personal safety and safe subway riding, please review these links from the NYPD.

ADDITIONAL STUDENT SAFETY TIPS

- Be particularly mindful when entering subway stations, on subway platforms, and when crossing streets.
- If biking, always wear a helmet and observe traffic rules and keep a safe distance from vehicle doors that may swing open.
- Always dial 911 in the event of any kind of emergency.
- Students should try to anticipate any safety issues in advance and should always feel comfortable discussing and troubleshooting safety concerns in advance with faculty members and other staff members at the school.
- These safety tips are not meant to anticipate every type of unsafe situation or safety concern that can arise, but to provide some useful guidance on a few measures to promote student safety while reporting. From the journalism school’s standpoint, student safety is a paramount priority.

Student-Police Interactions

There is often a tension between the role of the journalist and the role of the police officer, which can lead to disputes. We do not expect students on assignment to engage in confrontations with law enforcement officers. Simply put, you do need to follow lawful orders of a police officer. And, in fact, you may need to follow unlawful orders of a police officer and challenge the order later to vindicate your rights. If you are planning to cover a news event that could provoke a confrontation with law enforcement, please keep in mind the following guidelines:

1. Bring credentials (and wear them!). Every student journalist covering the event should have something that clearly identifies them as a member of the press. A personalized credential from your local, county or state police department may be the best identification. If that isn’t available or cannot be obtained in time for the event, an official credential document issued by the publication or school, identifying the journalist by name and photo as a member of the staff, may be the next best alternative. (In New York, students are not entitled to Police Department-issued press credentials, and law enforcement officers do not always recognize the CUNY-issued student press pass as valid identification.). Also carry a government ID, such as a driver’s license, and a credit card or cash (in case you need to post bond). Keep in mind that a press ID may still be ignored.

2. Identify an emergency contact in advance. Memorize or write their number with a Sharpie on your arm. Work out a plan in advance of what they will do in the event you are arrested or injured. Call and text them the moment that it appears things are escalating, because it may be hours before you can get access to a phone if you’re jailed (and this provides a written record – with timestamp – of what is happening). Use Twitter and other publicly accessible channels to get the word out widely so people will know where to look for you.

3. Write the number of a lawyer with a Sharpie on your arm so if you lose your phone or it is confiscated then you still have the number.

4. Recognize that demographic characteristics, including race, gender, sex, etc., as well as how you are dressed, may affect how you are treated by members of the police. We wish this were not so, but it plainly is.

5. In NYC, know which NYPD precinct is located where you are reporting. Locate your local precinct by entering your location in the address box or zoom in to location.

6. Obey all police orders. If ordered by police to leave an area or disperse, move outside the crowd and find a place to observe and cover as close as possible. If possible, identify yourself as a journalist to the officer in charge and ask for guidance as to where you can continue your job without interfering with theirs. If you believe police are acting unlawfully or unreasonably in orders given to you, do your best to document the names and titles of those involved as well as the names and contact information of other witnesses. If possible, take photos or video of the police misconduct and, as soon as possible, write down what happened. It is generally not a wise idea to disobey a police order on the scene, but you can ask them to reconsider if you make clear that you do not want to interfere with their efforts and will ultimately obey an order given. However, as soon as is practicable, contact an attorney for guidance on how to file a formal complaint.

7. Students who are not US citizens, whether documented or undocumented, need to be mindful of the collateral immigration consequences of being arrested.

8. If arrested or detained, act immediately.
   - Inform the police officers in question that you are a journalist there to cover the events and show them your press credentials. If they disregard your status, encourage them to contact their superior officer before they take any action against a member of the press.
   - If police insist on arresting or detaining you, let them know that you wish to contact a lawyer (see above) and do so immediately. Do not agree to plead guilty to any charge without first talking to legal counsel or fully understanding what you are doing. If you believe you are not guilty, you preserve all of your legal rights only by pleading “not guilty.”
   - Under the 4th amendment you do not have to show images or recordings if asked to do so by police. They cannot seize your camera unless they believe that you have captured a crime. Police cannot view content without a warrant. They cannot delete images or files. Password protect your phone and do not use facial recognition, as the police cannot force you to tell them your password.

9. Bear witness. If you or a colleague are being arrested by police or otherwise prevented from doing your job as a journalist, ask that those around you record the event and send their material to your professor as soon as possible.

CODE OF ETHICS
Our society grants journalists and the news media enormous freedom and privilege. With that freedom comes great responsibility. The Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism expects all members of its community to act according to the highest ethical standards of academia and the journalism profession.

Many news organizations require employees to sign codes of ethics. Because the Newmark J-School is preparing students to enter the media world and because integrity is so important to our profession, we too shall require all students to read, sign and heed this Code of Ethics. Students who violate this Code may face appropriate sanctions, up to and including expulsion, in accordance with CUNY Bylaws and the CUNY Policy on Academic Integrity and professional journalism standards.

BASIC PRINCIPLES

The duty of journalists is to inform the public in ways that promote understanding of past or current or upcoming events and the workings of a democratic society. To be credible and trustworthy, we seek truth in an unbiased way, always striving for a fair and comprehensive account of events and issues.

It is not possible to codify all good behavior. But we should subject everything we do to the twin tests of honesty and fairness — and remain accountable for the results. Some of this is obviously easy to state. For example, we should take great care to avoid errors of any kind. We should admit mistakes and promptly correct them in a manner likely to reach those who read, saw or heard the erroneous piece. We should tap multiple sources for information, identifying them and their motivations whenever feasible. We should be reasonable, judicious, and unbiased in setting forth and interpreting facts. We should distinguish between news reporting and analytic forms of journalism, including opinion pieces and commentary. Other “best practices” often depend on the circumstances and require prudent judgment and the wise counsel of experienced colleagues. When in doubt, please seek guidance. This is, after all, an educational institution.

WHAT NOT TO DO

There are certain kinds of behavior that are easily identifiable as unacceptable in an academic community and in the journalistic world. Inevitably, we do need some “thou-shall-not” rules. The following conduct violates the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism’s Code of Ethics.

1. Fabricate. No student shall knowingly present false information or invent information, data, quotations, or sources in a journalistic presentation or academic exercise. No student shall show reckless disregard for factual accuracy. No student shall manipulate or falsify images or video or audio in a manner that creates false impressions or compromises accuracy.

2. Plagiarize and Use Others’ Content. No student shall knowingly represent the words or ideas or photography or video or audio produced by another person as their own. Such information must be fully credited to the original source by attribution, quotation marks, footnotes, and/or other established journalistic practices and professors must be apprised of the use of any material that is not the student’s own independent work. Be advised that all student work may be analyzed electronically for violations of this code and may be checked against a database for plagiarized content. Please ask your instructor if you have any questions about how to distinguish among acceptable research, attribution and plagiarism.

3. Cheat. No student may engage in any form of academic cheating, for example on tests, journalistic exercises or otherwise, or help another student to cheat. No student may submit work previously submitted in another course without the knowledge and permission of the instructor.

4. Engage in Conflicts of Interest. All students must avoid any conflicts of interest between their appropriate role as student journalists and any other outside role. Such conflicts include preparing journalistic assignments on subjects or institutions in which the student has a financial, family, or personal involvement. When in doubt, consult with your instructor. You must disclose all potential conflicts to the appropriate faculty member or to the Associate Dean before you begin the journalistic assignment.

5. Misrepresent yourself. Students must be forthright and honest about how they identify themselves to subjects and sources and should never represent themselves as anything other than journalists or journalism students. Students must obtain approval in advance in writing from the appropriate faculty member and dean for any proposed “undercover” activity.

6. Conduct yourself Inappropriately. No student may engage in conduct during class or on assignment that brings discredit to the school or University. Such misconduct includes disruptive behavior, physical abuse, safety threats, property damage, theft, lewd or obscene behavior, or discrimination by word or deed on the basis of race, gender, religion, place of origin, age, disability, or sexual orientation.

7. Misuse Social Media. Students must be responsible in their use of social media and should not violate professional journalism standards in their social media activities.

8. Break the Law. No student may break the law, including laws relating to trespassing, theft of information, breaking into email or voicemail, or any other violation of civil or criminal laws. If you believe you have been wrongly excluded from a news scene by law enforcement, please notify your instructor and/or dean to discuss whether legal follow-up is warranted.

9. Accept Gifts and Freebies from Sources. Students may not accept gifts, free tickets or travel, special meals or favors, or anything of value that could potentially compromise or appear to compromise their independence of their news sources or news subjects. However, it may be acceptable to accept press tickets, with the approval of the professor, to performances and screenings directly related to a class assignment. In delineating between what is compromising and what is within permissible parameters for journalists seeking access to newsworthy information, according to Reuters’ Handbook of Journalism, “In the course of gathering news, journalists are often invited to breakfasts, luncheons or dinners. As long as such occasions are newsworthy, it may be appropriate to accept the hospitality provided it is within reason. We do not accept ‘junkets’ — events that have little if any value to our newsgathering such as . . . an evening’s entertainment or a sporting event at the expense of a news source.” When in doubt, either politely decline or seek ADVANCE permission and guidance from your instructor or the Newmark J-School dean.

10. Pay for Access to News or Sources. Students may not pay sources or provide sources with anything of value in exchange for interviews or access.

No set of rules can possibly address all situations that may arise. The school reserves the right to find that other conduct not specified in this Code, the CUNY Policy on Academic Integrity, or the Bylaws constitutes violation of academic or journalistic integrity. If situations arise that seem ambiguous, please talk to the appropriate faculty member and/or the Associate Dean’s office. Your full disclosure is very important in all matters of integrity. Current students by receiving this handbook understand they are responsible for the Code of Conduct.

MORE ON PLAGIARISM AND FABRICATION

Plagiarism is the act of stealing work whether it is writing, reporting, photography, graphics or editorial cartoons and passing it off as one’s own. Attribution is crucial. Proper credit is necessary and mandatory, but does not necessarily mean that you have not violated someone’s copyright in the material.

Plagiarism is prohibited. It is a punishable offense that could result in expulsion. In the Google age it takes just seconds to catch you stealing other people’s work. Your work is subject to verification using plagiarism-detection software. This policy also forbids lifting verbatim material from any online or printed source without crediting that original source. Even material previously published by your school/course should be attributed to the original source.

You have plagiarized if you:

- Copied text from the Web and pasted it into your story without quotation marks or citation
- Presented facts without stating where you found them
- Repeated or paraphrased words or phrases without acknowledgement
- Took someone’s unique or particularly apt phrase without acknowledgment

To avoid plagiarism:

- List the sources and contact numbers used in your reporting and use the list to double check the material in your story
- While taking notes, keep separate your own ideas, summaries of others’ ideas or exact wording from other people’s work
- Identify the sources of all exact wording, paraphrases, ideas, arguments, images and facts that you use
- Ask your instructor if you are uncertain about your use of sources
- Be prepared to describe how you got the story

FABRICATION

We do not deceive readers by fabricating news and news events. Making up quotes or inventing sources is not tolerated. Fictional and satirical writing must be clearly labeled as such. Our work is to chronicle history, not to make it up. Use of fictional names, ages, places, dates and composite characters is generally unacceptable, unless done in consultation with an instructor.

VERACITY OF PHOTOS AND GRAPHICS

Images that purport to depict reality must be genuine in every way. Photographs must not be staged or posed; people or objects must not be rearranged reversed, distorted or removed from a scene. Only traditional adjustments, such as cropping, dodging or burning, are acceptable. The content of a news photograph or graphic should never be altered in any way that turns the image or graphic into something the journalist did not shoot. Photo illustrations should be clearly labeled as such. The origin of any photo whether produced by staff or outside sources should be clearly attributed.

PURCHASING OF ACADEMIC PAPERS

The purchasing of term papers, student essays, reports, and other written assignments, however described, from commercial term paper vendors or other sources is illegal. Students purchasing such materials may be subject to disciplinary proceedings.
FALSIFICATION OF RECORDS

Any student found to have submitted false documentation as part of their application for admission will be subject to disciplinary action.

PROCEDURES IN INSTANCES OF ACADEMIC DISHONESTY OR CODE OF ETHICS VIOLATIONS

An accusation of academic dishonesty or violation of the Code of Ethics may be brought against a student by a professor, a program, a group of faculty, an administrator, or another student and must be reported to the Office Student Affairs or the Associate Dean.

Faculty are encouraged to discuss the matter with the student, including possible resolution, but no student may be assigned a grade as a sanction without the student’s agreement or a due process determination. Any such resolution must be reported to the Director of Student Affairs and the Associate Dean.

The Director of Student Affairs, upon receiving an allegation of academic dishonesty, works with the Associate Dean to determine whether sufficient evidence exists to warrant levying formal charges against a student or whether an effort should be made to resolve the issue through conciliation.

If formal charges are filed, a five-person disciplinary committee (two students, two faculty members and a chair) hears the evidence, presented by the Associate Dean; the student charged with the offense is given the opportunity to respond and present his/her case in writing and also in person or by phone, and represented by counsel if so desired.

The disciplinary committee first decides guilt or innocence on the charges and then the appropriate penalty in the instance of a guilty finding. The committee chair notifies the Associate Dean and the Director of Student Affairs of the committee’s decision. The student may appeal the decision to the Dean, whose opinion will be final, except if the penalty is greater than a one semester suspension or dismissal. In that case, the student may appeal further, to the appropriate committee of the CUNY Board of Trustees.

OTHER STUDENT RESOURCES
Copyright

During your tenure as a CUNY student, you will have opportunities to have your work published, posted or broadcast, thereby obtaining the all-important clips you will use in order to apply for internships and jobs. You may wonder whether you have the right under the U.S. copyright law to grant permission or sell work that you have created for class or school projects. Students generally own the copyright to the work they produce while attending CUNY. The Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism maintains a non-exclusive license to use the material for non-commercial, educational purposes. (As an example, the school might use your work on a password-protected website as an example to other students of what a capstone project should look like.) If the work is developed in an entrepreneurial course or in the entrepreneurial certificate program, the school will obtain a separate licensing agreement with the student.

Email Accounts

Each student at the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism is issued an email account, and messages sent to that account can automatically be forwarded to other email addresses used by the student. Once your email account has been issued, all electronic communication will be sent ONLY to your school email account. Students are responsible for all information, notices and assignments sent to that account. This means that if you do not normally use email, you must get into the habit of checking your Newmark J-School email on a regular basis. Most faculty members communicate with their students through group mailing lists (listserves) that use the school email accounts; students can only post to a class listserv using their school email account. Saying that you never read email is no excuse for missing an assignment or failing to participate in an online class discussion.

It’s easy to figure out how to contact anyone at the Newmark J-School via email. All email addresses are in this format: firstname.lastnameXX@journalism.cuny.edu. Students will keep their email account after graduation and also have access to an alumni listserv. To resolve any problems related to your email account, please open a ticket using the online Help Desk.

Facebook and Online Directory

All students, first semester faculty, and program directors will be included in the photo facebook, which will be distributed at the beginning of each academic year. Staff photos can be found at the end of this handbook.

Identification Card and Press Card

All employees (staff and faculty) and students of the J-School are required to carry a Newmark J-School photo identification (ID) card with a current validation sticker in order to gain access to the building and the library. Students may be asked to show the card when entering the Newmark J-School or other City University buildings or when using any Newmark J-School facilities. You will also be given a library barcode sticker, to use both in the Newmark J-School Research Center and at the Mina Rees Library at the Graduate Center. In subsequent semesters, the Public Safety Officer at the 3rd Floor desk will issue students updated validation stickers for their identification cards once the Bursar’s Office has certified that the student has paid tuition and fees for the new semester. Students who lose their ID card will be issued a duplicate upon payment of a $10 fee.

Students will also receive a press card identifying them as reporters for the NYCity News Service and students at the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism. This card should assist them in gaining access to many news events. Students who lose their press pass will also be issued a duplicate, upon payment of a $5 fee.

Listservs

The Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism will set up a variety of listservs to be used for electronic communication purposes.

Lockers

Each student will be assigned a locker and will be able to program their own combination code. These lockers, installed for the convenience of students, are the property of the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism and the right to access them at any given time. The School accepts no responsibility for the loss of anything kept in a locker. Lockers must be kept in a secured lock position at all times. Lockers must also be emptied at the end of each academic year, as they will be reassigned. Students will be given a date by which lockers must be emptied; any material remaining in the lockers will be discarded. Anything of value that remains unclaimed after a 30-day period must be submitted to the New York City Police Department. Should you need assistance resetting your locker combination, please visit the Public Safety desk at the 3rd floor lobby.

Lost and Found

Should you lose or find an item, please visit the Public Safety desk on the 3rd floor. We will secure the items there should they be found. If items are not claimed by the end of a one-year period, they will be disposed of. You may also want to send a lost or found announcement to the student listserv.

Name Changes

STUDENT PREFERRED NAME CHANGES

CUNY policy states that students and employees are permitted to use a preferred first name and middle name on all non-official records such as identification card, email address, and course rosters, without the need to provide documentation. Official records such as student transcripts and diplomas require a legal name change.

Students are able to use CUNYfirst self-service to select a preferred first and middle name.

CUNYfirst Preferred Name Change Instructions:
- Visit the CUNYfirst Webpage
- Log into your account
- Go to Student Center
- Scroll down to Personal Information and Click “Names” on the left hand side
- On that page you should be able to add a name and indicate that it is your preferred name.
- Please note that this will only change your name on CUNYFirst, it is not a legal name change. After making this update your preferred name will also be shown on class rosters and Blackboard.
STUDENT LEGAL NAME CHANGES DUE TO COURT ORDER AND TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Students are entitled to change records to reflect new or resumed names in accordance with any court ordered legal name change. To obtain the change, a student must show an original or certified copy of the order.

If there is a typographical or spelling error in your legal name, contact the Registrar for a request to change name or ID form. Documents needed to verify the error include birth certificates, passports, social security cards, driver’s licenses, or other documents issued by federal, state or local government agencies.

Official Transcript Requests

Newmark J-School provides a service which allows students to request and pay for an official transcript online. Students using this online service are responsible for the $7 transcript fee (unless it is going directly to another CUNY campus), plus a convenience service charge. Payment is available by any major credit card or debit card. Upon receipt of requests, transcripts are processed in 2-4 business days.

Photocopying and Printing

All students, staff and faculty will have access to photocopy machines and printers. Please print and copy only what is essential. The Office of Information Technology will be tracking usage, and individuals who use these services in excess will have their access restricted. Please note: The J-School follows the copyright law of the United States (Title 17, US Code), which governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials.

Social Media Policy

Social media plays a vital role in our journalism. On social platforms, students can promote their work, provide real-time updates, harvest and curate information, cultivate sources, engage with readers and experiment with new forms of storytelling and voice.

We strongly encourage you to abide by the following standards for social media use:

- If you identify your affiliation with Newmark J-School in your profile or comments, other users will naturally associate you with the university.
- Avoid posting information to social networking sites or blogs that could call into question your ability to act independently as a journalist.
- Refrain from posting information to social networking sites or blogs that could discredit you, or the Newmark J-School.
- Recognize that a post you intend as humorous or ironic may not be perceived that way. Be mindful that tone and sarcasm don’t easily translate online and don’t post content that can be easily misinterpreted or considered insensitive or offensive.
- Use common sense.
ACADEMIC POLICIES, PROCEDURES AND SERVICES
Adding and Dropping Courses

During the first three weeks of each semester, students have the option of adding and dropping elective courses. (Adds after the first day of class each semester will require the permission of the Director of Student Affairs and the course instructor). Please check the CUNY academic calendar to review the course drop refund schedule. Required courses may not be dropped and students must amass at least 43 credits to graduate. After the first three weeks of the term, if a student elects to withdraw from a non-required course, a “Course Withdrawal” form should be submitted to the Office of Student Affairs. A grade of “W” will be assigned, and the student remains liable for tuition. A fee of $18.00 may be assessed for any program changes made after a student’s original schedule has been processed.

Address Changes

Address changes MUST be submitted anytime there is a change in a student’s residence. All official documents will be mailed to the address on file with the Newmark J-School and from the Graduate Center via the information in a students CUNYfirst account. Submit any updates, in writing, to the Office of Student Affairs via email as well as change their address with the Graas well as a change of address with the Graduate Center via your CUNYfirst account. An old address will delay notification of important information students may need to act upon.

Advising

In the first semester, each incoming student will be assigned a Faculty Advisor and a Student Affairs Advisor.

Your Faculty Advisor is available to assist you with the transition to J-School, provide advice and guidance and support you in your educational pursuits.

Your Student Affairs Advisor will assist you with class selection and registration each semester, provide academic program information and ensure you are meeting degree requirements on your path to graduation.

In the second and third semester, in addition to their Student Affairs Advisor, students will be able to choose their own Faculty Advisor from a core group of professors.

All students must meet with their Student Affairs advisor before registering each semester. During this meeting, students can discuss academic and professional goals, and seek guidance in selecting courses.

• Meet with your Student Affairs advisor to discuss course selections
• Complete a course interest worksheet emailed from the Office of Student Affairs
• Advisor must approve course selections in order for your registration hold to be lifted.

To avoid late registration fees, students should always be sure to schedule their meetings with advisors before the registration period commences each semester and review their CUNYFirst accounts to clear all holds.

Attendance Policies and Deadlines

As a professional school, the Newmark J-School has the same expectations for professional behavior as a news organization.
Reporters are expected to show up every day ready to work and Newmark J-School students are expected to attend every one of their classes. Reporters who don’t show up don’t have a story – and pretty quickly, they don’t have a job.

If you cannot attend one of your classes, you are expected to notify the professor with the reason and get an excused absence. A medical or family emergency is generally sufficient reason for an excused absence from the Newmark J-School, just as it is from a job. An unexplained or unexcused absence is never okay and will lead to a lowering of your grade. It is within the professor’s discretion to determine what qualifies as an excused absence. Similarly, arriving late for class on a regular basis also will lead to a grade reduction for unprofessional behavior.

In the news world, deadlines are sacrosanct. For every day that an assignment is handed in late, the grade on that piece will be lowered by at least a letter grade step, e.g. from an A to an A-. An assignment handed in even 15 minutes after it is due will count as the first day of a missed deadline; the day after it is due counts as the second day, and so forth. Individual faculty members have the authority to impose even more stringent penalties for late work in their courses. Students should be sure to check the syllabi of all their courses to be clear about attendance and deadline expectations of their faculty members.

Auditing Courses

With permission of the instructor, matriculated students may audit courses in which they have an interest so that they can increase their knowledge and proficiency. If allowed, students must formally register to audit courses in the same manner as for any other course. Students must select the audit option in the action field on the web registration screen. Auditor status cannot be changed to credit status after the change-of-program period has ended. Likewise, credit status cannot be changed to auditor status after the same period. The grade notation “AUD,” which carries no credit, cannot be changed to any other grade. Audited courses will be included in the calculation of total credits to determine full- or part-time status, and tuition must be paid on any audited course.

Coaches

Coaches work one-on-one with students to guide them on projects and help problem-solve. Students are advised to consult a coach if they have tried something themselves and it hasn’t worked to their satisfaction. Coaching Hours are updated early each semester on our website.

Course and Faculty Evaluations

At the end of each semester, students will be asked to evaluate the teaching and content of the courses that they have taken. These evaluations are very useful to the faculty and administration in improving the quality and utility of course offerings and teaching techniques.

Credit Limit

Students may not register for more than 17 credits a semester without the permission of the Associate Dean. Students who register for more than 17 credits will be charged additional tuition.
Cross Story Use (‘double dipping’) in Multiple Courses

Reporting from a story for one course may sometimes be used for a story in another course. The most common example: reporting for a text/photo story for Craft class may also be used for a video or data or audio story for another class. The exact same story is never acceptable for two different classes. Permission must be given ahead of time by professors from all classes involved.

Denial of Student Services

The Board of Trustees of The City University of New York has a formal policy requiring the withholding of college services to any student who is delinquent in any financial account with the University (including tuition, books owed to the library, equipment owed to the Information Technology department or fees owed for late return of books or equipment) or any student who is in default for any loan administered through the University. Denial of services means that students are not permitted to register or receive a leave of absence or official withdrawal and are not issued their degree, certificate; nor are they eligible to receive additional student aid until the default/delinquency has been satisfied.

ePermit

ePermit facilitates the process of CUNY students obtaining permission to register for courses offered at other CUNY colleges. Prior to taking courses at another institution a student should inquire at the Host College for registration dates and procedures governing visiting CUNY students on ePermit. To see the class schedule at all colleges please visit the Global Class Search.

Please note that an ePermit does not automatically register a student for a course nor does issuance of an ePermit guarantee enrollment at the Host College. Once you have enrolled at the Host College, cancellation of an ePermit does not delete your course registration; see details below regarding student responsibilities.

Disputes Concerning Academic Grades

The Newmark J-School faculty is responsible for determining the requirements and standards of performance for courses. A course instructor retains considerable discretion in these matters. The instructor is under obligation, however, to ensure that the course syllabus is consonant with the goals of the curriculum of the degree program. The expected level of performance in a given course shall reflect levels of difficulty relevant to the educational objective of the program. In addition, the instructor has an obligation to students to make clear the basis of evaluation (e.g., reading assignments, paper, contributions to seminar discussions, experimental work) at the start of each course so that students are not surprised by unexpected or untimely demands. Grades on examinations or for work in a course are the responsibility of the instructor.

In the case of disputes over a graded assignment and final course grades, the student should discuss the matter with the instructor. The student may be accompanied by a student or other member of the Newmark J-School community in discussion with the instructor or advisor. Under the federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), students have the right to review their examinations. If the matter is not resolved, the student may register a formal complaint with the Office of Student Affairs. A representative from that office shall consult with the instructor and/or the student’s advisor and attempt to resolve the matter. If the matter is not informally resolved through this means, the student may appeal the grade in writing to the Academic Appeals Committee via the Associate Dean. This appeal must be made within three weeks of final grade filing and be to resolve a dispute regarding grades posted to a student’s formal transcript. The appeal should state the basis for the student’s belief that the grade was given without reasonable or adequate basis. That committee will hear the appeal, including reviewing evidence and statements to the committee from the student and the faculty member involved and may make such further investigation as it deems appropriate.

The Academic Appeals Committee shall make a recommendation to the Dean, whose decision will be final. The process will be completed no more than three weeks after the appeal has been submitted.

There may at times be problems affecting students’ academic success, progress toward the degree, or relationships within the program. As such situations arise, students are advised to attempt to address the issues informally with the individual faculty member and/or the Director of Student Affairs. If these avenues do not appear to offer satisfactory solutions, the Associate Dean may be consulted.

The appeals policies and procedures described within this handbook distinguish between disputes concerning grades and disputes concerning termination of matriculation. While an appeal is in process, the student appealing may register and, if registered, is classified as making satisfactory progress (for that semester) and, if otherwise entitled, is eligible to receive federal student loans. Consideration will be given to allowing a student to withdraw from the program effective the semester in which their appeal is turned down and providing the student with a refund for that semester’s tuition. This consideration, however, is not an option if the student has taken a federal loan for that semester unless the loan is repaid prior to the withdrawal.

Disputes Concerning Academic Termination/Dismissal

Students who fall below a cumulative 2.7 GPA in their first semester, or in their second semester, fall below a 2.8 cumulative GPA can be dismissed from the program. If a student believes that additional information should be considered, a student will be able to appeal their dismissal by writing a letter to the Associate Dean. Students can also submit any relevant documentation they feel should be considered. A committee will then review the appeal, along with written explanations from relevant faculty members. Within 10 days of an appeal being filed, the committee will issue its recommendation to the Dean and the Dean’s determination will be final. Students who have more questions about this process should speak with the Director for Student Affairs.

A student may be terminated from the program by established formal policy of the program – most often this will be for failure to show satisfactory academic progress. A student may appeal a termination decision to the Academic Appeals Committee within 10 days of receiving a letter of termination. The student may submit written evidence and statements to the committee and may be asked to speak before the panel. The committee may also review evidence from selected faculty members. The Appeals Committee shall make a recommendation to the Dean, whose decision shall be final. The student shall be given the opportunity to withdraw from the program before any official action is taken.

Faculty Office Hours

All faculty members will post their office hours or include in their syllabi how students can schedule an appointment to meet with them. Students should take advantage of these times to meet with faculty and to raise any questions/concerns not addressed during class meeting times.

Grading System

Newmark J-School degree candidates will be graded in all courses creditable toward the degree as follows: *GPA quality point is calculated to two decimal points.

SP: Satisfactory Progress

W: Withdrew without academic penalty

This is a student-initiated grade, which may be requested from the fourth through the tenth week of the semester, regardless of course start date. Under no circumstances can a student withdraw and receive a ‘W' grade after the tenth week of the semester without permission of the Associate Dean. This grade carries tuition liability.

WA: Administrative withdrawal

This grade, which does not affect the grade point average, is administratively assigned.

WN: Unofficial withdrawal

If the student has never attended a class and there is no documented evidence of the student's participation in a course, the unofficial withdrawal grade reported would be a ‘WN.' This grade is calculated into the GPA in the same way a ‘W' is calculated.

WU: Unofficial Withdrawal

A grade of ‘WU' is to be assigned to a student who attended a minimum of one class, completely stopped attending at any time before the final exam week, and did not officially withdraw and are factored into a students’ GPA.
F: Failure
If the student receives an ‘F’ in a course, the course must be repeated to receive credit for it (or another equivalent credit course for electives). Grades of ‘F’ are factored into a students’ cumulative GPA.

P: Pass
Pass/Fail designation is used for internship credits. No letter grades are submitted for internships.

INC: Incomplete
To be assigned only when student work has not been completed by the end of the semester and the instructor agrees to permit the student 30 days to complete the work. The ‘INC’ must be changed to a letter grade, once the instructor submits the final grade change form to the Academic Affairs Office. Only second and third semester students are eligible to request an INC.

Students with two or more open grades (“INC”, “INF”) at the end of the semester will be placed on academic probation.

INCOMPLETE POLICY
To qualify for an incomplete, a student must either have a medical or family emergency, or be unable to complete projects due to unforeseen circumstances. For the latter reasons, the student must have been showing satisfactory progress in the class and have completed at least 75% of the coursework by the last day of classes.

First semester students are not eligible to use the incomplete policy. Students are required to complete their first semester assignments/courses to progress to second semester advanced courses.

Second and third semester students have up to 30 days from the last day of classes to complete their pending assignments.

Students with two or more open grades (“INC”, “INF”) at the end of the semester will be placed on academic probation.

INCOMPLETE GRADES
Only at the discretion of the instructor and in cases of medical or family emergency will students be permitted to receive an incomplete grade in a course. A student must complete an “Incomplete Form” in consultation with the instructor they are working with and have it approved by the Associate Dean. To resolve incomplete grades, students must fulfill their obligations within a time period that is determined by the faculty member. After one year, an incomplete (“INC”) will automatically be transformed into an “INF” (permanent incomplete); extensions will be granted only in exceptional circumstances upon written application and with the permission of the faculty member, the Director of Student Affairs, and the Associate Dean. Permanent incompletes will accrue no credit. Students with more than one incomplete course at the end of a semester will be brought to the attention of their academic advisor and the Director of Student Affairs to determine whether or not they are making satisfactory progress.

Leave of Absence
Because of the nature of the Newmark J-School program, leaves of absence will be granted to students only in the event of family or medical necessity. An exit interview will be required. No more than four semesters of total leave time will be granted to any student.

Each leave request should be made in writing to the Director of Student Affairs prior to the semester or academic year during which the leave will be taken. If approved, requests for leave will be forwarded to the Office of the Registrar. The leave must then be cleared by the Offices of Financial Aid, International Students (if applicable), as well as the Libraries, the Bursar, and the Business Office. Leaves of absence are not counted toward the time limit for completion of degree requirements. Any student subject to induction or recall into military service should consult the veterans’ certifying officer before applying for an official leave. Any international student with F-1 (student) or J-1 (exchange visitor) status should consult the Office of International Students before applying for a leave. A $20 readmission fee will be assessed when the student completes the Application for Readmission indicating intent to return.

Rate Schedule
- Resident: $225 per semester
- Non-Resident: $370 per semester

Mid-Semester Reviews
All first-semester students will receive a mid-semester evaluation from their Craft I or Reporting for Engagement J instructor. These reviews will serve as a baseline for progress in the program. This review will supplement, not replace, regular feedback from the instructor. All first-semester students must meet with their faculty advisors to review this mid-semester evaluation and discuss a development plan for the remainder of the semester. It is optional to meet with your Student Affairs advisor.

In addition, in all three semesters, students at risk of receiving below a B in any course will receive a notification of that fact by the instructor and will be told explicitly what they must do to raise their grade. The student should discuss and formulate a plan of action.

Non-Matriculated Student Policy
If a potential student would like to take a class as a non-matriculated student before applying to the program, you should contact The Office of Student Affairs at studentaffairs@journalism.cuny.edu to learn which classes may be open to students who are not enrolled in the master’s program. The Office of Student Affairs will contact the professor teaching the class to share your interest. You should be prepared to submit work samples so the professor can evaluate how prepared you are for a graduate-level course. If the professor decides the work samples show the appropriate level of preparedness and allows you to take the class, you will need to obtain an application for non-matriculated students from studentaffairs@journalism.cuny.edu. The application must be submitted at least six weeks prior to the beginning of the semester in which you are taking the class. You are not guaranteed a spot while you are going through the application process. Please review the latest tuition cost.

Petition to Change Requirement

A student may identify a requirement they would like the administration to consider changing. The student(s) should file a petition explaining the desired change and reasons for the change. Petitions can be requested and then emailed to the Director of Student Affairs. Petitions will be considered in a timely manner, however, some petitions may need wide input from faculty, and so may take longer to decide.

Probation

Students whose GPAs fall below 3.0 will be placed on academic probation. (Please see Standards for Retention and Graduation above.) The student will receive a letter from the Associate Dean informing them of their probationary status. Letters will be sent via email and to the address on file at the school.

To continue in the program, students must submit a letter and/or email to the Associate Dean, copying the Director of Student Affairs, requesting that the student be allowed to stay in the program, and elaborate on how they propose to improve their academic standing. Students will also be required to set up a meeting with the Associate Dean to discuss their plans in person, and to review the consequences of continued unsatisfactory progress. Upon approval, students will be allowed to register and receive financial aid, if eligible, and continue their academic progress.

Procedures for Complaints about Faculty Conduct

The University and its Colleges have a variety of procedures for dealing with student-related issues, including grade appeals, academic integrity violations, student discipline, disclosure of student records, student elections, sexual harassment complaints (please refer to the Title IX section for additional information), disability accommodations, and discrimination. One area not generally covered by other procedures concerns student complaints about faculty conduct in the classroom or other formal academic settings. The University respects the academic freedom of the faculty and will not interfere with it as it relates to the content or style of teaching activities. Indeed, academic freedom is and should be of paramount importance.

At the same time the University recognizes its responsibility to provide students with a procedure for addressing complaints about faculty treatment of students that are not protected by academic freedom and are not covered by other procedures. Examples might include incompetent or inefficient service, neglect of duty, physical or mental incapacity and conduct unbecoming a member of the staff.

DETERMINATION OF APPROPRIATE PROCEDURE

If students have any question about the applicable procedure to follow for a particular complaint, they should consult with the Director of Student Affairs. In particular, the Student Affairs office should advise a student if some other procedure is applicable to the type of complaint the student has.

INFORMAL RESOLUTION

Students are encouraged to attempt to resolve complaints informally with the faculty member or to seek the assistance of the department chairperson or dean to facilitate informal resolution.

FORMAL COMPLAINT

If the student does not pursue informal resolution, or if informal resolution is unsuccessful, the student may file a written complaint with the Associate Dean or, if the Associate Dean is the subject of the complaint, with the Dean. (This person will be referred to below as the “Fact Finder.”)

The complaint shall be filed within 30 calendar days of the alleged conduct unless there is good cause shown for delay, including but not limited to delay caused by an attempt at informal resolution. The complaint shall be as specific as possible in describing the conduct complained of.

The Fact Finder shall promptly send a copy to the faculty member about whom the complaint is made, along with a letter stating that the filing of the complaint does not imply that any wrongdoing has occurred and that a faculty member must not retaliate in any way against a student for having made a complaint. If either the student or the faculty member has reason to believe that the Associate Dean may be biased or otherwise unable to deal with the complaint in a fair and objective manner, they may submit to the Dean a written request stating the reasons for that belief; if the request appears to have merit, that person may, in their sole discretion, replace the Associate Dean as the Fact Finder.

The Fact Finder shall meet with the complaining student and faculty member, either separately or together, to discuss the complaint and to try to resolve it. The Fact Finder may seek the assistance of the campus ombudsman or other appropriate person to facilitate informal resolution.

If resolution is not possible, and the Fact Finder concludes that the facts alleged by the student, taken as true and viewed in the light most favorable to the student, establish that the conduct complained of is clearly protected by academic freedom, they shall issue a written report dismissing the complaint and setting forth the reasons for dismissal and send a copy to the complaining student, the faculty member, and the chief student services officer. Otherwise, the Fact Finder shall conduct an investigation. The Fact Finder shall separately interview the complaining student, the faculty member and other persons with relevant knowledge and information and shall also consult with the chief student affairs officer and, if appropriate, the college ombudsman. The Fact Finder shall not reveal the identity of the complaining student and the faculty member to others except to the extent necessary to conduct the investigation. If the Fact Finder believes it would be helpful, they may meet again with the student and faculty member after completing the investigation in an effort to resolve the matter. The complaining student and the faculty member shall have the right to have a representative (including a union representative, student government representative or attorney) present during the initial meeting, the interview and any post-investigation meeting.

At the end of the investigation, the Fact Finder shall issue a written report setting forth their findings and recommendations, with particular focus on whether the conduct in question is protected by academic freedom, and send a copy to the complaining student, the faculty member, and the chief student services officer. In ordinary cases, it is expected that the investigation and written report should be completed within 30 calendar days of the date the complaint was filed.

APPEALS PROCEDURE

If either the student or the faculty member is not satisfied with the report of the Fact Finder, the student or faculty member may file a written appeal to the Dean within 10 calendar days of receiving the report. The Dean shall convene and serve as the chairperson of an Appeals Committee, which shall also include the chief student services officer, two faculty members from the school’s Academic Appeals committee and one student from the Academic Appeals committee. The Appeals Committee shall review the findings and recommendations of the report, with particular focus on whether the conduct in question is protected by academic freedom. The Appeals Committee shall not conduct a new factual investigation or overturn any factual findings contained in the report unless they are clearly erroneous. If the Appeals Committee decides to reverse the Fact Finder in a case where there has not been an investigation because the Fact Finder erroneously found that the alleged conduct was protected by academic freedom, it may remand to the Fact Finder for further proceedings. The committee shall issue a written decision within 20 calendar days of receiving the appeal. A copy of the decision shall be sent to the student, the faculty member, the department chairperson and the president.

Following the completion of these procedures, the Dean shall decide the appropriate action, if any, to take. For example, the Dean may decide to place a report in the faculty member’s personnel file or bring disciplinary charges against the faculty member. Disciplinary charges may also be brought in extremely serious cases even though the school has not completed the entire investigative process described above; in that case, the bringing of disciplinary charges shall automatically suspend that process.

Readmission

Readmission following a withdrawal is at the discretion of the Newmark J-School. A special Application for Readmissions, along with a personal statement must be filed in the office of Student Affairs. Academic work completed before the student withdrew from the School will be reevaluated upon readmission and will be credited toward completion of a degree at the program’s discretion. A $20 readmission fee will be assessed.

Standards for Retention, Graduation, and Commencement Ceremony Participation

Students must be making satisfactory progress toward the degree in order to maintain status at the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism and to be eligible for any student financial assistance. A student is deemed not to be making satisfactory progress if they have a grade point average below 3.0, and/or has accumulated more than two open grades (“INC,” “INF”).

Please refer to the sections on “Incomplete Grades,” “Standards for Retention,” “Grading System,” which appear in this handbook.
The Office of Student Affairs at the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism reviews each student’s record every semester and matriculation may be terminated for unsatisfactory academic performance—generally considered less than “B” average and/or failure to meet other program requirements.

If a student receives an “F” in a course required for completion of the program, they must repeat this course. Upon completion of the repeated course, the two grades will be averaged into the student’s grade point average. The “F” is not replaced but rather averaged into the overall GPA. The repeated course with a grade of “B” or better will be considered as meeting the degree requirements.

If formal standards have not been met, a student may register (and receive financial aid, if otherwise eligible) only upon petition to the Associate Dean and the Director of Student Affairs credits they attempt in order to be in good academic standing. If you are not in good academic standing, your financial aid can be suspended. Students can appeal this decision by logging on here: https://cuny-soj.studentforms.com/. Students whose petitions are approved are considered to be making satisfactory progress toward the degree and are eligible to receive financial aid.

Students who are employed by the University must show satisfactory performance in these activities. If this performance is found to be unsatisfactory, such employment may be terminated. This type of termination is independent of satisfactory academic progress.

Graduation is dependent upon completing the required course of study with a GPA of at least 3.0 and submitting a Capstone project. Students who complete the course of study and have not attained a 3.0 may have one or more additional semesters in which to take coursework to bring their GPA up to the 3.0 standard, upon the approval of the Associate Dean. Students who have no more than six (6) credits pending (e.g. Incompletes) or remaining to degree completion may participate in their class year commencement ceremony. Students with more than six pending or remaining credits may participate in the commencement ceremony the following December.

Student Immunization Requirements

Public Health Law 2165 requires that all full- and part-time students who were born on or after January 1, 1957, must present proof of immunization against measles, mumps, and rubella in order to register, attend classes, or use University facilities. The Newmark J-School is required to bar registration or administratively withdraw students who do not comply. Students administratively withdrawn incur full tuition liability. A copy of Public Health Law 2165 may be found in all Student Affairs offices. Specific questions should be directed to the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs at the Graduate Center.

In addition, Public Health Law 2167 requires that all college and university students enrolled for at least six semester hours return a Meningococcal Meningitis Vaccination Response Form before they may register. All matriculated students (both new and continuing) should have received a form by mail. Additional forms are available in the Wellness Center, Room 6422 of The Graduate Center and online. The MMR form must be submitted to the Wellness Center well in advance of the first day of semester classes.
If the form is not received, a hold will be placed on your account, preventing you from registering for next semester classes.

CUNY students attending in-person and hybrid classes for the Fall 2022 and Spring 2023 semester are required to be fully vaccinated against COVID-19. Students can upload their vaccination record or submit a request for an religious or medical exemption from getting a COVID vaccine via the CUNYfirst portal, under the Vaccination Verification. Students can visit campus for other reasons without being fully vaccinated, but must show proof of a negative COVID-19 test taken no more than 7 days prior to the visit.

If you’re an international student who has received a COVID-19 vaccine that is approved by the World Health Organization (WHO), you are considered fully vaccinated as specified in the WHO approval and fully vaccinated under CUNY policy. You can share proof of vaccination through the CUNYfirst portal. If for some reason you have received a vaccine that is not approved by the FDA or WHO, you should immediately contact Anthony LaViscount, the J-School’s Location Vaccine Authority (LVA), to determine the appropriate course of action.

It is advised that all students carry a photo of their vaccination card in their cell phone for access to campus in the event there’s a problem with the CUNYfirst vaccination verification system.

Student Policy for Sexual Misconduct

CHANGES TO PROCESSES

The 2015 Policy, which covered all students and employees of the University, addressed sexual misconduct by setting forth prohibited conduct and required processes for reporting and responding to such conduct, as well as providing for education on sexual misconduct and the Policy for all new and incoming students and certain members of the University community. Processes for response included investigation and adjudication of allegations against students and employees, and rules for complainants and respondents appeal determinations of charged violations of the Policy.

The revised Policy has been re-ordered and includes revisions that will affect campus processes and procedures, specifically: (1) changes to the definitions of specific terms; (2) the addition of new appeals processes for complainants and respondents involved in a complaint of sexual misconduct; (3) the creation of procedures to determine if a student is a continuing threat to campus health and safety; (4) the availability of an informal resolution process; and (5) inclusion of the student disciplinary adjudication process within the Policy (rather than Article XV of the CUNY Bylaws, a separate document).

CHANGES TO POLICY DEFINITIONS

We have made a number of changes to definitions under the Policy that align the Policy definitions with Clery, which will facilitate accuracy in tracking and reporting data. The definition of affirmative consent now aligns with the broader statutory definition and includes clarifying examples. The definitions of manager and supervisor have been changed, and the Policy specifies that supervisors and managers who knowingly allow sexual harassment to occur may be subject to discipline.
APPEALS PROCESSES

In accordance with EIE, the Policy provides both students and employees (complainants or respondents) the opportunity to appeal the college’s implementation of a restrictive interim or supportive measure, or to appeal on conflict of interest grounds an individual’s participation in the Title IX investigation or adjudication process.

Either complainant or respondent may appeal restrictive interim measures such as a no-contact order or the removal of a student from a class or section. The Chief Student Affairs Officer will decide student appeals, and the Director of Human Resources will decide employee appeals. These officials have authority to uphold, modify or remove the interim measure.

When considering a student’s appeal of a restrictive interim measure, the Chief Student Affairs Officer should examine: (1) whether an alternative section or class exists; (2) a student’s need for the class in order to graduate; (3) the nature and circumstances surrounding the incident; (4) the existence of a court-issued order of protection; (5) the existence of online class alternatives; and (6) the likelihood that respondent and complainant will come in contact with one another. For such an appeal brought by an employee, the Director of Human Resources should consider whether the employee can perform tasks at a different office within the college, whether a suitable transfer exists, and if there is a court-issued order of protection. Decisions related to interim and restrictive measures for employees must be made in accordance with the employee’s collective bargaining agreement, if any. All decisions on appeals of restrictive interim or supportive measures should be made as quickly as possible and, once made, either the Chief Student Affairs Officer or Director of Human Resources, as applicable, must take immediate steps to implement any changes or modifications to the interim measures.

Similarly, a student or employee complainant or respondent may request that an individual involved in the investigatory or adjudication process whom they allege has a conflict of interest be removed from the process. This request must be in writing within five (5) days of notification of the individual’s involvement in the process and must include a detailed description of the conflict. Student conflict appeals are to the Chief Student Affairs Officer, and employee conflict appeals to the campus Legal or Labor Designee. The decision on the conflict must be in writing, delivered to the objecting party by either overnight mail or e-mail, and made as quickly as possible under the circumstances, so that the investigatory or adjudication process may proceed. If the decision made by the Chief Student Affairs Officer or Legal or Labor Designee has the potential to disrupt the education or work environment of either the complainant or respondent, both parties must receive the decision simultaneously.

DETERMINING A CONTINUING THREAT AND STUDENT INTERIM SUSPENSION

The disciplinary procedures for a student accused of violating this Policy are now located in Section XX of the Policy rather than in Article XV of the CUNY Bylaws. There has been no change to the student disciplinary procedures themselves, which continue to require that hearings be held before a specially trained Faculty- Student Disciplinary Committee. A complainant and respondent do not have the right to cross-examine each other directly in a student disciplinary hearing, but may do so through their representative or by submitting questions to the FSDC chairperson. As before, a respondent who is both a student and an employee are subject to discipline under both the student disciplinary process and applicable collective bargaining agreement, and a respondent employee is subject to Anonymous Reporting

To facilitate easier communication about sensitive issues involving diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) at the school, we’ve created an online tool that any member of the school community can utilize. Here is the link to that form under the Current Students’s Policies section on our website.

With this tool, you can either provide your name or submit your comments anonymously. The school’s chief diversity officer (CDO) will review submissions on a weekly basis. The nature of a submission will determine what path the CDO takes to investigate and address it. The CDO will bring all submissions and additional information about them to the attention of Associate Dean Andy Mendelson (who oversees faculty), Assistant Dean Colleen Leigh (who oversees HR), Assistant Dean Yahaira Castro (who oversees the student experience), and Dean Sarah Bartlett. If any of them are the subject of a concern or complaint, that person will be excluded from the conversation. Those who include their names with their submissions will get a direct response from the CDO within two weeks. In addition, the CDO will report the aggregated results of this tool to the school every two months.

Education and Training

As you are aware, CUNY’s campuses must provide comprehensive education and awareness programs for all incoming students and new employees. While this obligation has not changed, because of Section 201-G of the amended NYS Labor Law, all employees must now complete annual training on sexual harassment. Additionally, members of the special subcommittee of the Faculty Student Disciplinary Committee hearing and deciding charges of sexual misconduct against students must receive annual specialized training before they participate in a hearing.

You will be receiving additional information shortly about your campus training obligations as well as available resources including the online education module SPARC for students and E-SPARC for employees.

Education Plans, Record Keeping, and Reporting

a. Education Plans and Annual Progress Reports

Beginning in academic year 2015-16, all campuses have submitted mandatory annual Education Plans for the upcoming academic year, and Annual Progress Reports for the previous year. You will receive additional guidance on 2018-19 Education Plans and Progress Reports, which will be due December 1, 2018, for the 2018-19 academic year to Rodney L. Pepe- Souvenir, Associate Director for Diversity and Compliance/University Title IX Coordinator.

b. Annual Aggregate Data Reporting to NYS Education Department

This academic year, New York State Education Department (“NYSED”) issued regulations defining the requirements for college aggregate data reporting to NYSED established in EIE. NYSED performed a voluntary interim aggregate data collection in June 2018 for which all campuses submitted reports.

Beginning October 1, 2019, colleges must report annually to NYSED information concerning incidents of sexual assault, violence, etc. that were reported to the college during the prior calendar year. The NYSED aggregate data reporting now follows the Clery campus crime reporting schedule.

Colleges are to continue to utilize the Sexual Misconduct Log to keep track of incidents of sexual misconduct on their campus as well as any resulting adjudication.

c. Coordination in Education Plans, Record Keeping, and Reporting
In alignment with the University’s protocol on responding to all incidents of sexual misconduct, the campus Title IX Coordinator, Chief Student Affairs Officer, Director of Public Safety, Human Resources Director, Legal Designee and others as appropriate, must continue to consult and work together to provide these educational plans and progress reports, as well as to ensure that Clery reports accurately reflect allegations of reported crimes relating to sexual misconduct. Those crimes include rape, fondling, incest, statutory rape, domestic partner and dating violence, stalking and hate crimes that include crimes based on sexual orientation and gender identity.

If you have questions about any of these policies or their implementation, please contact Rodney Pepe-Souvenir, Associate Director for Diversity and Compliance/University Title IX Coordinator, at (646) 664-3314; Roberta Nord, University Director of Advocacy and Referral, at (646) 664-8753; or Dan Simonette, Associate General Counsel, at (646) 664-9215.

Students’ Rights Concerning Education Records (FERPA)

1. The right to inspect and review the student’s education records.

Students should submit to the Office of Student Affairs written requests that identify the record(s) they wish to inspect. If the records are not maintained by the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism official to whom the request was submitted, that official shall advise the student of the correct official to whom the request should be addressed. Pursuant to the guidelines issued by the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York, all requests shall be granted or denied in writing within 45 days of receipt. If the request is granted, the student will be notified of the time and

2. The right to request the amendment of the student’s education records that the student believes are inaccurate or misleading.

Students may ask the college to amend a record that they believe is inaccurate or misleading. They should write to the college official responsible for the record, clearly identify the part of the record they want changed, and specify why it is inaccurate or misleading. If the college decides not to amend the record as requested by the student, the college will notify the student of the decision and advise the student of their right to a hearing regarding the request for amendment. Additional information regarding the hearing procedures will be provided to the student when notified of the right to a hearing.

Taking Classes at Other CUNY Campuses

Students at the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism benefit from being a part of the CUNY system, which makes up 11 senior colleges, 7 community colleges, the Macaulay Honors College and five graduate and professional schools located throughout NYC. Depending on the school and program, journalism students may need to seek permission to take courses at the intended school before they can register. As of August 2016, students can either register through CUNYfirst for courses at the Graduate Center, or through e-permit for courses in most of the other colleges. The e-permit system is accessible through the CUNY portal. For more information, students are welcome to visit the Director of Student Affairs at the Newmark J-School.

Withdrawal

All students seeking to withdraw from the program will be required to give an exit interview. Written notice of voluntary withdrawal from the Newmark J-School program must be approved by the Associate Dean, forwarded to the Office of the Registrar, and cleared by the Offices of Financial Aid, International Students (if applicable), as well as the Libraries, the Bursar, and the Business Office. Such notice must be submitted prior to the end of the third week of classes of a given semester to avoid full tuition liability for that semester. To resume study, a former student must apply to the program for readmission. Students who have not been granted a leave of absence or who have not registered by the first week of a given semester will be withdrawn automatically from the Newmark J-School.
OTHER INSTITUTIONAL POLICIES
As a school within The City of New York (CUNY) system, all general CUNY policies apply to the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism, including such issues as follows. For more detailed information, please see the bulletin of the CUNY Graduate Center.

Access and Use Policy at the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism

Posting of Literature

The Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism has the following policy regarding the posting of flyers and other materials around the building. In addition to saving trees, the goals of the new policy are: to reduce the clutter of flyers taped to the surfaces in the building; present a neater appearance for visitors; protect painted surfaces from marring; and make better use of the cleaning staff time.

The posting of flyers and other materials is limited to designated bulletin boards which can be found near the restrooms on the 3rd floor of the building as well as the plastic inserts found on both 3rd and 4th floor restroom doors. Notices are not permitted on surfaces in public areas of the building, including walls, classroom/seminar doors, lockers, windows, partitions and bathroom stalls.

All materials displayed on bulletin boards in the building must include 1) the name of the Newmark J-School student, faculty or staff member or organization/office responsible for the posting and 2) the date of the event, deadline or the day of the posting. The individual or organization named on the posting is responsible for taking down the material. Postings by anyone else will be permitted at the discretion of the Office of Student Affairs.

The Newmark J-School reserves the right to take down all postings that do not comply with the policy or those displayed for more than two weeks from the posting date or the advertised event or deadline.

The administration would also like to remind everyone that announcement of events and deadlines are appropriate for posting to the class listserv (@journalism.cuny.edu). We encourage that in lieu of paper postings, community members use either class listserves or facebook groups to disseminate information whenever possible.

Here is the most current flyer information.

Security and Public Safety Measures

The following measures are some of the means that may be used by the Office of Public Safety in striving to provide a safe and secure environment for the Newmark J-School community and its visitors while protecting and respecting the rights of the individual, including free-speech rights. These include: enforcing public assembly space occupancy limits; requiring the presentation of identification; assignment of additional security personnel; searching bags, packages, and other containers; requiring that coats, outerwear, bags, packages, and containers be put in checkrooms before entrance to events; using magnetometers (metal detectors); videotaping, audio taping, and/or photographing an event; and requesting the presence of outside law enforcement agencies.
Access to Campus Crime Statistics, Campus Security Report, & Registered Sex Offenders

The College Advisory Committee on Campus Safety will provide upon request all campus crime statistics as reported to the U.S. Department of Education, as well as the annual campus security report. For a list of what the security report includes, see the Graduate Center handbook, pages 79-80. The campus crime statistics and the annual campus security report are available on the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism website in the Campus Security and Public Safety section.

In accordance with the federal Campus Sex Crimes Prevention Act, registered sex offenders now are required to register the name and address of any college at which they are a student or employee. The New York State Division of Criminal Justice maintains a registry of convicted sex offenders and informs the college’s chief security (public safety) officer of the presence on campus of a registered sex offender as a student or employee. You may contact the college’s chief security officer to obtain information about Level 2 or Level 3 registered sex offenders on campus. To obtain information about Level 3 offenders, you may contact the Division’s registry website, and then click on “Search for Level 3 Sex Offenders” or access the directory at the college’s public safety department or police precinct. To obtain information about Level 2 offenders, you need to contact the public safety department, local police precinct in which the offender resides or attends college, or the Division’s sex offender registry at 1-800-262-3257.

Drug and Alcohol Policy

The City University of New York (“CUNY”) is an institution committed to promoting the physical, intellectual, and social development of all individuals. As such, CUNY seeks to prevent the abuse of drugs and alcohol, which can adversely impact performance and threaten the health and safety of students, employees, their families, and the general public. CUNY complies with all federal, state, and local laws concerning the unlawful possession, use, and distribution of drugs and alcohol.

Students are expected to comply with the CUNY and college policies with respect to drugs and alcohol. Any student found in violation may be subject to disciplinary action under Article 15 of the Bylaws of the Board of Trustees, which may result in sanctions up to and including expulsion from the University.

In addition, any student who resides in a CUNY residence hall and who is found to have violated any CUNY or college policy with respect to drugs and alcohol may be subject to sanctions under the CUNY Residence Hall Disciplinary Procedures, up to and including expulsion from the residence hall.

In lieu of formal disciplinary action, CUNY may, in appropriate cases, seek to resolve the matter through an agreement pursuant to which the student must see a counselor or successfully participate in a drug and alcohol treatment program.

In accordance with the Federal Educational Rights and Privacy Act (“FERPA”), CUNY may also choose—when appropriate—to contact parents or legal guardians of students who have violated the CUNY policy on drugs and alcohol.

Persons who are experiencing problems with drug or alcohol use may receive free, confidential health counseling and referral services at two locations at the CUNY Graduate Center: the Student Health Services (212) 817-7020, and the Wellness Center Student Counseling Services (212) 817-1602.

NYS Governor’s Office Opiate/Heroin Initiative
CUNY has joined the New York State Governor’s Office in an important initiative to address a recent increase in heroin overdose. Heroin is an opiate, a class of drugs that is derived from the poppy plant. All opiate abuse, including many prescription painkillers, can lead to addiction, overdose and even death. If you or someone you know is abusing heroin or prescription painkillers, CUNY’s Mental Health and Wellness Offices can provide educational resources and referrals to organizations that can help. In addition, selected CUNY health and public safety staff are being trained to administer Naloxone, a drug used to counter the effects of opioid overdose and prevent death. For immediate help, visit your local emergency room, or call the OASAS HOPEline at 1-877-846-7369 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to speak with a trained medical professional. HOPEline staff can answer your questions and help you find treatment. All calls are free and confidential. Please visit the website.

Policy with Regard to Students who are Breastfeeding
In recognition of the importance and benefits of breastfeeding for mothers and infants and in compliance with state and federal law, CUNY supports the rights of nursing mothers at school and in the workplace. CUNY and the Craig Newmark Graduate School of Journalism are dedicated to making its best effort to accommodate requests from nursing mothers for break time and a private space to express milk oncampus.

The Newmark J-School has identified the printer/pantry room in the 3rd floor Office of Admissions and Student Affairs, and the 14th-floor Server Room as reasonable accommodations for mothers. Please note that the door may be shut, and a sign posted to insure privacy. This room will be made available to students based on availability, on a first-come, first-served basis.

Policy with Regard to Students who are Pregnant
The Newmark J-School does not discriminate against any student on the basis of pregnancy or related conditions. Absences due to medical conditions relating to pregnancy will be excused for as long as deemed medically necessary by a student’s doctor and students will be given the opportunity to make up missed work. Students needing assistance can seek accommodations from the Office of Student Affairs.

Rules and Regulations for the Maintenance of Public Order Pursuant to Article 129A of the Educational Law
Rules and regulations for the maintenance of public order on college campuses and other college property used for educational purposes were adopted by the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York.
(formerly the Board of Higher Education) on June 23, 1969, in compliance with Chapter 191 of the Laws of 1969 of the State of New York. These rules and regulations are in effect at all campuses of The City University of New York. The full text may be found in the Graduate Center handbook. The following is an excerpt from these rules and regulations:

The tradition of the university as a sanctuary of academic freedom and center of informed discussion is an honored one, to be guarded vigilantly. The basic significance of that sanctuary lies in the protection of intellectual freedoms: the rights of professors to teach, of scholars to engage in the advancement of knowledge, of students to learn and to express their views, free from external pressures or interference. These freedoms can flourish only in an atmosphere of mutual respect, civility and trust among teachers and students, only when members of the university community are willing to accept self-restraint and reciprocity as the condition upon which they share in its intellectual autonomy. Academic freedom and the sanctuary of the university campus extend to all who share these aims and responsibilities. They cannot be invoked by those who would subordinate intellectual freedom to political ends, or who violate the norms of conduct established to protect that freedom.

Student Rights Religious Observances

Education Law Section 224-a, stating the rights and privileges of students unable to attend classes on certain days because of religious beliefs, appears below, as mandated by state law:

1. No person shall be expelled from or be refused admission as a student for the reason that they are unable, because of their religious beliefs, to register or attend classes or to participate in any examination, study, or work requirements on a particular day or days.

2. Any student who is unable, because of their religious beliefs, to attend classes on a particular day or days shall, because of such absence on the particular day or days, be excused from any examination or any study or work requirements.

3. It shall be the responsibility of the faculty and of the administrative officials to make available to each student who is absent from school because of religious beliefs an equivalent opportunity to register for classes or to make up any examination, study, or work requirements which they have missed because of such absence on any particular day or days.

4. If registration, classes, examinations, study, or work requirements are held on Friday after 4 p.m. or on Saturday, similar or makeup classes, examinations, study, or work requirements, or opportunity to register shall be made available on other days, where it is possible and practicable to do so. No special fees shall be charged to the student for these classes, examinations, study, or work requirements held on other days.

5. In effectuating the provisions of this section, it shall be the duty of the faculty and of the administrative officials to exercise the fullest measure of good faith. No adverse or prejudicial effects shall result to any student because of that student’s use of the provisions of this section.

6. Any student who is aggrieved by the alleged failure of any faculty or administrative officials to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall be entitled to maintain an action or proceeding in the supreme court of the county in which the institution is located for the enforcement of rights under this section.

On every CUNY campus there is a person who has special training in helping students who are facing issues related to sexual harassment and/or assault. In an emergency, please call ext. 7777 for public safety if you’re on campus. If you’re off-campus, please call 911 right away for help. For more help and guidance, please contact Amy Dunkin and/or our Public Safety Director, the school’s interim Title IX liaisons, for guidance or information. Or, visit the website for more information.

Tobacco Free CUNY Policy

Out of respect for others and the environment, CUNY is tobacco-free! Effective September 4, 2012, the use of tobacco is prohibited on all grounds and facilities under CUNY jurisdiction, including indoor locations and outdoor locations such as playing fields; entrances and exits to buildings; and parking lots. This policy applies to all tobacco and tobacco products including chew tobacco and e-cigarettes.

Title IX Sexual Assault Policy

Combating Sexual Assault and Other Unwelcome Sexual Behavior

Anyone of any gender, sexual orientation, religious affiliation, citizenship status, race, class or educational level can suffer from sexual harassment, including sexual violence. Our goal is to help foster an environment learn and/or work free from sexual harassment, and connect you with people in the campus community and at CUNY who can help if you or others experience it. We want to make sure you understand your rights as a student, CUNY’s policies, and other issues related to sexual harassment and assault.

Workplace Violence Policy

CUNY prohibits workplace violence. Violence, threats of violence, intimidation, harassment, coercion, or other threatening behavior towards people or property will not be tolerated. Complaints involving workplace violence will not be ignored and will be given the serious attention they deserve. Individuals who violate this policy may be removed from University property and are subject to disciplinary and/or personnel action up to and including termination, consistent with University policies, rules, and collective bargaining agreements, and/or referral to law enforcement authorities for criminal prosecution. Complaints of sexual harassment are covered under the University’s Policy Against Sexual Harassment. The University, at the request of an employee or student, or at its own discretion, may prohibit members of the public, including family members, from seeing an employee or students on University property unless necessary to transact University-related business. This policy particularly applies where the employee or student suspects that an act of violence will result from an encounter with said individual(s).

All faculty, staff, students, vendors, contractors, consultants, and others who do business with the University, whether in a University facility or off-campus location where University business is conducted, are covered by this policy. This policy also applies to other persons not affiliated with the University, such as former employees, former students, and visitors. When students have complaints about other students, they should contact the Office of Student Affairs.
